As with any extended writing project, I was keen to have as many people pass judgement on my work as possible before letting it out into the public domain. Special thanks must firstly go to the wonderful American historians at the University of Edinburgh who so generously gave up their time to read draft chapters and provide invaluable feedback: Frank Cogliano, Fabian Hilfrich, Rhodri Jeffreys-Jones and Robert Mason. I would also like to thank Julie Burns, Charles Conquest and Brian Greenwood for reading my draft chapters to ensure the volume worked as a whole. I am most grateful to the libraries of the University of Leicester and University of Bristol, whose online and printed materials have proved vital in making this book possible. Finally, I would like to express my gratitude to the tireless series editors Emily West and Martin Halliwell, the reviewers of my initial proposal, and Michelle Houston and Adela Rauchova at EUP, without whom this book would have likely remained unwritten.
