

Acknowledgements and Dedication

Many of the essays in this volume were first given at the conference ‘Female Fury and the Masculine Spirit of Vengeance’ which took place in 2012 at Bristol University. The conference was generously supported by: Bristol’s Institute for Research in the Humanities and Arts (BIRTHA); Bristol’s Institute of Greece, Rome and the Classical Tradition (IGRCT); the Department of English; The Society for the Promotion of Hellenic Studies; and the assistance of Samantha Barlow. Bristol University’s Faculty Fund supported the project in its final stages. Mark Curtis, Tamsin Badcoe, Ian Burrows, Ian Calvert, Ros Powell, Laurence Publicover and Rebecca Yearling offered valuable support and advice. Gratitude is also due to Samantha Matthews, who was a vigilant reader during the final stages of the volume and a wonderful friend throughout.

This book is dedicated to Sara Eaton, who sadly died before the volume came to completion. Sara was an inspirational scholar and teacher and we are honoured to include her work in this collection.
