I am pleased to acknowledge the support and encouragement provided by Carol Macdonald and her excellent team at Edinburgh University Press. I have very much enjoyed the opportunity to work with such dedicated, patient and generous professionals.

I am fortunate to count among my friends and colleagues some outstanding philosophical interlocutors. With respect to this book, I am especially indebted to Christa Davis Acampora, Keith Ansell-Pearson, Babette Babich, Rebecca Bamford, Paul Bishop, Jeffrey Church, Christian Emden, Robert Gooding-Williams, Peter Groff, Robert Guay, Lawrence Hatab, Kathleen Higgins, Anthony Jensen, Claire Katz, Paul Kirkland, Manuel Knoll, Duncan Large, Vanessa Lemm, Paul Loeb, Michael McNeal, Allison Merrick, Robert Miner, David Owen, Antoine Panaïoti, Graham Parkes, Paul Patton, Robert Pippin, Gary Shapiro, John Seery and Jon Stewart. I also wish to honour the memory of the inimitable Tracy Strong (1943–2022), whom I knew for forty years as a teacher, advocate and friend.

This book took shape against the backdrop of the COVID-19 pandemic. I was fortunate to be quarantined with the three best people I know in the world: Claire, Olivia and Evelyn.

Research support was provided by the College of Liberal Arts and the Melburn G. Glasscock Center for Humanities Research at Texas A&M University.

I am grateful for permission to publish revised material that appeared originally in the following essays and publications:

‘Nietzsche’s Europe’, in European/Supra-European: Cultural Encounters in Nietzsche’s Philosophy, ed. Marco Brusotti, Michael J. McNeal, Corinna Schubert and Herman Siemens. Berlin: Walter de Gruyter, 2020, pp. 87–106.

‘Why (and When) Philosophy Must Yield to Music: The Case of Nietzsche’s Nachgesang’, in Nietzsche and Music, ed. Aysegül Durakoglu, Michael Steinmann and Yunus Tuncel. Cambridge: Cambridge Scholars Press, 2022, pp. 391–409.

‘The Religious Neurosis’, in The Modern Experience of the Religious in its Many Forms, ed. Nassim Bravo and Jon Stewart. Leiden: Brill, 2023, pp. 294–323.

‘Nietzsche’s Philosophical and Rhetorical Aims in Beyond Good and Evil’, in The Contributions of 19th-Century Continental Philosophy, ed. Patricia Dip and Jon Stewart. Leiden: Brill, 2024, pp. 9–32.

I am also grateful to Stanford University Press for granting permission to cite from several volumes in The Complete Works of Friedrich Nietzsche, edited by Alan D. Schrift and Duncan Large.

Finally, I am indebted to Keith Ansell-Pearson not only for his friendship, but also for his extensive comments on an earlier draft of this manuscript.
