

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I would like to begin by thanking the authors in this volume whose expertise, enthusiasm and scholarly dedication made this possible. Thank you to the peer-reviewers whose constructive feedback strengthened the chapters presented in this book. I would like to extend my thanks to the University of California, Irvine, for hosting me as I developed the framework for the volume, and the Edinburgh University Press editors and reviewers for their interest in our work and the constructive feedback that they provided on the book proposal and the manuscript. Lastly, my sincere thanks to Stephen Pascoe, Julia Clancy-Smith, Trinidad Rico, Sargon Donabed, Sarina Wakefield and Katarzyna Pieprzak for their precious support and their generous insights throughout this intellectual journey. This volume is dedicated to all retired, unemployed and casual academics who continue to give their time to and spend resources for scholarly research and writing.
