

CONTENTS

List of Figures and Tables	viii
Preface	x
1 Introduction	1
1.1 Knowledge of language: competence and performance	1
1.2 The projection problem	2
1.3 Universal Grammar	2
1.4 The development of the field	3
1.5 Outline	4
Further reading	4
Notes	4
2 The Acquisition of Sound Systems	5
2.1 Speech sounds	5
2.2 Phonetics, phonology and language variation	9
2.3 Speech perception in adults and children	10
2.4 Early speech sounds	15
2.5 Features	16
2.6 Child phonologies	17
2.7 Child systems and phonological theory	24
2.8 Ongoing debates	26
Chapter summary	28
Further reading	29
Questions and exercises	29
Notes	31
3 Morphological Development	32
3.1 Inflectional morphology	32
3.2 Derivational morphology	36
Chapter summary	41
Further reading	42
Questions and exercises	42
Notes	42

4	The Acquisition of Syntax	43
4.1	Syntactic structures and Universal Grammar	43
4.2	The outer course of development	51
4.3	Early syntax	52
4.4	Syntax in the preschool years	55
4.5	Later developments	69
4.6	Syntactic development and the recent theory of grammar	71
4.7	Semantic bootstrapping, prosodic bootstrapping and beyond	73
	Chapter summary	75
	Further reading	76
	Questions and exercises	76
	Notes	77
5	Further Aspects of Syntactic and Semantic Development	78
5.1	Tense	78
5.2	Aspect and aktionsart	82
5.3	Negation	84
5.4	Modality	86
5.5	Children's knowledge of quantification	88
5.6	More connections between lexical structures and mental structures	93
	Chapter summary	95
	Questions and exercises	96
	Notes	96
6	Cognition, Environment and Language Learning	98
6.1	Innateness	98
6.2	Input and errors	100
6.3	The role of Universal Grammar in language development	101
6.4	Learnability and acquisition principles	102
6.5	Summary: components of a learning model	103
6.6	Some putative challenges to the model	104
6.7	Continuity vs. maturation	107
6.8	Language development and cognitive development	108
6.9	Errors and error correction	112
	Chapter summary	112
	Further reading	113
	Questions and exercises	113
	Notes	114
7	Performance Development	115
7.1	Estimating competence	115
7.2	The adult processing mechanism	116
7.3	Children's processing	119
7.4	Sentence production	125

7.5 Separating immature grammars from immature production/ processing mechanisms	127
Chapter summary	129
Further reading	129
Questions and exercises	129
Notes	131
Appendix 1: Methods in child language research	132
Appendix 2: Resources for child language research	141
Bibliography	142
Index	160