NOTES ON THE CONTRIBUTORS

Michele Aaron (Brunel University) is editor of The Body's Perilous Pleasures: Dangerous Desires and Contemporary Culture (Edinburgh University Press, 1999) and author of Spectatorship: The Power of Looking On (Wallflower, 2004). She has published articles on New Queer Cinema, spectatorship, and the 'queer Jew', and is currently working on a book on Death and the Moving Image.

Harry M. Benshoff (University of North Texas) is the author of Monsters in the Closet: Homosexuality and the Horror Film, and co-author (with Sean Griffin) of America on Film: Representing Race, Class, Gender, and Sexuality at the Movies (Blackwell Publishers, 2003). With Sean Griffin, he also coedited Queer Cinema: The Film Reader for Routledge, 2004.

Daniel T. Contreras is Assistant Professor of English and American Studies at Colby College in Maine. His book, What Have You Done to My Heart: Unrequited Love and Utopian Longings will be published this Spring by St. Martin's Press.

Glyn Davis is a lecturer in screen history and theory at Edinburgh College of Art. He is the co-editor, with Kay Dickinson, of Teen TV: Genre, Consumption and Identity (BFI, forthcoming) and is currently writing about Dirk Bogarde.

Michael DeAngelis is Assistant Professor at DePaul University's School for New Learning, where he teaches in the areas of media and cultural studies. He is the author of Gay Fandom and Crossover Stardom: James Dean, Mel Gibson, and Keanu Reeves (Duke University Press, 2001), along with articles in such journals as Cultural Critique and Film Criticism. He is currently writing a book-length study of the distribution and exhibition of art cinema in the United States during the 1960s and 1970s.

Ros Jennings has taught film and television studies in both Britain and Australia and is currently Research Director for Arts and Humanities and also Principal Lecturer in Film Studies at the University of Gloucestershire. She is the author of a forthcoming cultural history of Australian television in Britain.

Helen Hok-Sze Leung is Assistant Professor of Women's Studies at Simon Fraser University where she teaches queer theory, film and cultural studies. She is working on a book manuscript on queer issues in Hong Kong culture. Her articles on Hong Kong cinema and queer politics have appeared in numerous journals and anthologies.

Loykie (Loïc) Lominé is a lecturer in tourism management at King Alfred's College, Winchester. He has a PhD in Sociology from the University of Essex which is based on empirical work related to gay tourism in Australia. He is currently working on various teaching and learning focused topics in the subject area of tourism management.

Monica B. Pearl lectures in twentieth-century American literature in the English and American Studies Department at the University of Manchester. She has published work on AIDS and representation, and is currently working on self-representation in literature and visual media.

Anat Pick received her PhD from the University of Oxford in 2001. She taught English literature at Tel Aviv University and Film Studies at Brunel University and is currently a Postdoctoral Fellow at the Rothermere American Institute, University of Oxford. She works on nineteenth- and twentieth-century American literature and culture.

Julianne Pidduck lectures at Lancaster University in the Institute for Cultural Research. She is author of The Woman at the Window: Contemporary Costume Drama and writes widely on gender, sexuality and the moving image.

B. Ruby Rich is Adjunct Professor of Film Studies at the University of California, Berkeley. She lives in San Francisco, writes for numerous publications, works frequently as an independent curator, and is completing her forthcoming volume, The Rise and Fall of the New Queer Cinema.

Anneke Smelik is Professor in Visual Culture at the University of Nijmegen, the Netherlands. She is author of And the Mirror Cracked. Feminist Cinema and Film Theory (Palgrave, 1998) and co-editor of Women's Studies and Culture: A Feminist Introduction (Zed Books, 1995).

Louise Wallenberg recently completed a PhD on Gender Theory and Queer Cinema at Stockholm University, where she lectures in the department of Cinema Studies and at The Swedish Program. She is currently working on the representation of queer male ideals within certain male film star personae in 1930s' Swedish films.