

Contents

Acknowledgements	vii
Notes on Contributors	viii
Preface	xi
Fonna Forman
Introduction: The Work of Christopher J. Berry – An Appreciation R. J. W. Mills and Craig Smith	1
1. Scottish Enlightenment Settings for the Discussion of the ‘Science of Man’ Roger L. Emerson	26
2. The ‘Almost Wilfully Perverse’ Lord Monboddo and the Scottish Enlightenment’s Science of Human Nature R. J. W. Mills	49
3. The Rough Edges of Civilisation in the Scottish Enlightenment Craig Smith	71
4. The Stickiness of Manners? The Progress of Middling Rank Manners in David Hume, Adam Smith and John Millar Spyridon Tegos	98
5. ‘The Happiest and Most Honourable Period of My Life’: Adam Smith’s Service to the University of Glasgow Ryan Patrick Hanley	115
6. Adam Smith on Political Leadership Eric Schliesser	132
7. Adam Smith and the Virtue of Punctuality Maria Pia Paganelli	164

8. Civility and Slavery: The Problematic Basis of Civilised Society in Hume's History of England Naohito Mori	173
9. Hume as Forerunner of the Sociology of Emotions: The Effect of Context, Comparison and Sympathy on the Genesis of Pride Ana Marta González	199
10. The Reception and Study of David Hume's Economic Thought in China Zhang Zheng-ping	222
Index	242