

CONTENTS

Introduction	3
1 The world of the peoples of Mesopotamia	7
Places and peoples	7
The rediscovery of the ‘Assyrians’	13
The evolution of Mesopotamian historiography	21
2 Political history of the Assyrian empire
(934–610 BC)	27
The first expansion (934–827)	29
Crisis and refoundation (823–727)	34
The Sargonid empire (721–610)	40
Document
One of Ashurnasirpal II’s campaigns in the east of Anatolia in 865	47
3 Control of the imperial territory	53
Military organisation	54
At the hub of the empire	61
The provinces	68
Document
Extract from the Census of Harran	73
4 The centre of Assyrian government	78
The king of Assyria	79
The exercise of royal power	83
Where the power lay	90
Documents
The king of Assyria and his servants: letter from the exorcist Adad-šum-ušur	101
The setting for a royal life: Sargon II’s palace at Dûr-Šarrukîn	106

5 Babylonia: from kingdom to empire
(900–539 BC)	112
Babylonia from the ninth to the seventh centuries	114
The glory of Babylon	122
From the Babylonian to the Persian empire
(561–539)	129
Document
The dreams of king Nabonidus	138
 6 Society and economy in the neo-Babylonian period	143
Social and economic strata	144
Economic activities	154
Management of the large organisations	159
Documents
The life of Babylonian notables: Lurindu's marriage	165
Land management: leasing contract	170
 7 Religion and culture in Babylonia in the first millennium BC	175
The pantheon and religious concepts	176
How religion was organised	181
Babylon, cultural capital	190
Document
An extract from the fourth tablet of the Epic of Erra	199
 8 Achaemenid Babylonia (539–331 BC)	203
A central province of the Persian empire	204
A reserve of soldiers	211
Tribute and intermediaries	215
Document
Financial activities in the Achaemenid era: leasing a royal tax	222

9 From the Seleucids to the Parthians (331 BC to AD 75)	226
The evolution of the satrapy of Babylonia	227
Socio-economic realities	238
The slow end of a civilisation	249
Document
Religious activities in the Seleucid period: renting out a prebend	255
Conclusion	261
Political chronology	264
Glossary	268
Bibliography	279
Sources of the texts quoted	281
Index	284

