

FIGURES

Figure I.1	The Thaba Nchu district, showing landmarks identified in the railway journey from Westminster to Sannahspos.	3
Figure 1.1	The southern highveld, early 1880s.	14
Figure 1.2	Partial Moroka genealogy.	23
Figure 1.3	Thaba Nchu: the Gregorowski land dispositions, 1885.	38
Figure 1.4	Farms granted to whites.	41
Figure 1.5	Farms granted to Africans.	42
Figure 3.1	Thaba Nchu: African reserves and Barolong farms, 1913.	96
Figure 3.2	Partial Setlogelo genealogy.	105
Figure 3.3	The disintegration of the Setlogelo family estate.	111
Figure 4.1	Thaba Nchu: Released Areas, 1936, and revisions, 1938.	130
Figure 5.1	Thaba Nchu: land bought by the South African Native Trust, late 1930s and late 1940s.	160
Figure 5.2	Partial genealogy of the Barolong elite.	190
Figure 6.1	The southern highveld, showing Bophuthatswana, early 1980s.	205
Figure 6.2	The Thaba Nchu district, Bophuthatswana, early 1980s, showing African freehold land at 'independence' (1977). The white-owned farms Onverwacht, Toekoms, Mariasrus, Mt Pleasant and Ngoanyana are also shown, to illustrate the story of Ngoanyana in Chapter 7.	208
Figure 6.3	Mmaboraki Mmeko: household turnover.	234
Figure 6.4	Botshabelo: residential sections, 1987.	238
Figure 7.1	Partial Makgothi/Masisi genealogy.	252
Figure 7.2	Thaba Patchoa farm.	254
Figure 7.3	Ngoanyana farm: before and after the South African war.	266
Figure 7.4	Daniel McPherson's estate, 1951.	270
Figure 7.5	Partial McPherson genealogy.	271
Figure 7.6	Mmadiphapang Thakho: household turnover.	276

PHOTOGRAPHS

The photographs which appear between pages 203–204 are attributed on pages 324–5.

