

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements	viii
List of abbreviations	x
List of maps, tables and illustrations	xii
1 Remo and Awolowo	1
Popular participation in the making of Remo	3
Popular participation in local-level politics	7
Remo politics before Awolowo	11
Awolowo as a product and a producer of Remo politics	14
Local support as the basis of political success	17
Awolowo in national politics	20
The myth and legacy of Awolowo	25
Outlook	29
2 The Institutions of Precolonial Remo	32
Obas and olójàs	33
The Òsùgbó and Orò associations	40
Agemo , Ehúkú and other òrìṣà	50
Groups based on joint residence and descent: quarters (itún) and families (ilé)	58
Participation and cooperation in the Rémọ̀ Mètàlélógbọ̀n	64
Conclusion	73
3 The Rise of Sagamu	75
The end of the Rémọ̀ Mètàlélógbọ̀n	75
The foundation of Sagamu	81
Confederate towns in other parts of Ijebu	86
Sagamu relations with the British	88
Opposition to Sagamu's dominance	92
4 Remo's Struggle for Independence	96
Christianity and historical rivalry	98
The high colonial educated elite	102

The struggle for independence from Ijebu-Ode, 1916–33	107
Early nationalist leaders: Obafemi Awolowo and Samuel Akinsanya	111
The crisis of legitimacy in Ijebu-Ode and Remo independence, 1933–8	114
5 Nationalist Politics and the Integration of Traditional Politics and Party Rivalry under Obafemi Awolowo	120
Early nationalist politics in Remo	120
Installing a nationalist oba	124
Gàrí politics and women's political mobilisation	127
The Máàjéóbàjé rebellion and Awolowo's entry into Remo politics	129
The Egbé Omo Oduduwa	134
The introduction of competitive party politics	137
Sabo and its integration into Remo party politics	141
The integration of traditional and party politics	148
6 Remo United, Ikenne Divided	153
A political marriage	154
Filling the throne of Ikenne, 1949–50	157
The struggle for the throne of Ofin, 1952	159
The unification of Remo behind the Action Group	162
Why Ikenne has no oba today	167
The rise of Idotun	170
Popular consent and the remaking of community	172
7 Ethno-Regional Politics and Popular Rebellion in Remo	175
Awolowo's trial and imprisonment	176
The NNDP struggle for Remo	181
Popular political mobilisation and the Orò association	185
The 1965 regional elections and afterwards	189
Orò in Sabo and in Remo	193
The sacralisation of Awolowo in everyday life	195
8 Self-Reliance, Development and Civic Pride in Remo	198
The consolidation of Yoruba politics under military rule	199
The 1979 elections	202
Opposition to state authoritarianism	204
The 1983 elections and Awolowo's retirement	208
Competitive giving and destruction	210
Awolowo and the invention of Ereke Day	214
Community development festivals	220

9 After Awolowo	229
Military rule and a pro-Awolowo Akàrigbò	229
Remo vigilantes and the Oodua People's Congress	233
The rise of Oodua organisations	237
Gender and indigeneity in an embattled Remo	239
The end of opposition politics	245
Transformations of Awolowo's political legacy	250
Conclusion	257
Notes	263
Bibliography	289
Index	307