

FIGURES

2.1	Sleep represents unawareness of women's trauma in Never Fear	28
2.2	Carol (Sally Forrest) foregrounded in crisis while her lover remains oblivious in Never Fear	29
2.3	A marginalised Carol (Sally Forrest) clings to the walls as she re-enters the world	34
3.1	Cecilia (Laya Raki) typifies the (Spanish) femme fatale	42
3.2	The most desired object in autarchic Spain: the passport	44
3.3	The gang of criminals looks for a place to rest but finds only abandoned towns	46
4.1	The noir western is a story told in hats in The Walking Hills	54
4.2	The earnest, sensual appeal of performer Josh White	60
5.1	Gentile versus Jewish émigré noir protagonists: Mitchum in Out of the Past versus Robinson in Scarlet Street	71
5.2	Blues in the Night as musical comedy and as musical noir	73
6.1	Karel Höger as the alienated mining engineer Vochoč	98
6.2	Vilma (Dana Medřická) defies many social norms and conventions, yet she comes off as a less threatening partner for Štěrba than his own wife	100

FIGURES

7.1	The rakish Deverill (Keith Michell) succumbs to the seductive Belle (Melina Mercouri)	117
8.1	A publicity poster for El Vampiro Negro that includes Gothic and noir imagery	132
11.1	Father Logan (Montgomery Clift) anxiously hears the murderer's confession	181
11.2	The Hitchcock cameo: the director strides across the screen atop Quebec City's 'L'escalier Casse-cou'	184