

A Note on Conventions

For the spelling of Bengali names, simplicity has been my central consideration. I have mostly avoided diacritical marks and retained some customary English renditions: Tagore, not Thakur. Notable Indian figures have been referred to by their first names but indexed under their last names, as is common in South Asian scholarship.

This page intentionally left blank