

Contents

Sarah-Jane Conrad, Klaus Petrus

Introduction — 1

Part 1: The contextual turn and the case for reference, truth-conditions and meaning

Christopher Gauker

Open texture and schematicity as arguments for non-referential semantics — 13

Kepa Korta and John Perry

Full but not saturated: The myth of mandatory primary pragmatic processes — 31

Silvan Imhof

How to get lost in context: Searle on context, content and literal meaning — 51

Nikola Kompa

Meaning and interpretation — 75

Anne Bezuidenhout

The role of context in semantics: A Relevance Theory perspective — 91

Part 2: The contextual turn and the case for language use

Stefano Predelli

Boo semantics: Radical nonfactualism and non truth-conditional meaning — 117

Damon Horowitz

Metaphor and mercurial content — 141

Part 3: The contextual turn and the case of analysis

Dominik Aeschbacher

Context, two-dimensional semantics and conceptual analysis — 171

Dan Zeman

The use of the Binding Argument in the debate about location — 191

Štefan Riegelnik

Slices of meaning: Levels of analysis and the unity of understanding — 213

Contributors — 227

Index — 229