

Contents

Preface — v

I The notion of emphasis

1 Introduction — 3

- 1.1 The notion of emphasis — 3
- 1.2 The syntactic approach to emphasis — 4
- 1.3 Emphasis for contrast and information structure — 11

2 The notion of emphasis for intensity — 14

- 2.1 Emphatic focus and marked word order — 14
- 2.2 Emphatic focus in a cross-linguistic perspective — 21
- 2.3 The mirative use: Experimental evidence — 28
- 2.4 The reprimand use and the notion of emphasis for intensity — 33
- 2.5 Outline of the proposal — 36

II Empirical domains of emphasis

3 Particle topicalization and emphasis for intensity — 41

- 3.1 Particle verbs: Topicalization and semantic transparency — 41
 - 3.1.1 Semantic transparency: A new classification — 42
 - 3.1.2 An acceptability study on particle topicalization — 50
- 3.2 Expressive conditions on particle topicalization — 58
 - 3.2.1 The class of expressive particle verbs — 58
 - 3.2.2 An acceptability study on expressive particle verbs — 69
- 3.3 The representation of different particle verb classes — 77

4 Emphasis for intensity across clause types — 85

- 4.1 Emphasis for intensity and clause types — 85
 - 4.1.1 Emphasis for intensity and exclamatives — 85
 - 4.1.2 Emphasis for intensity and special questions — 87
- 4.2 Emphasis for intensity and [wh+Prt]-questions — 92
 - 4.2.1 Left peripheral discourse particles and adverbs — 95
 - 4.2.2 Deriving the constituency of [wh+Prt]-constructions — 98
 - 4.2.3 The syntactic representation of emphatic [wh+Prt]-questions — 118
 - 4.2.4 The phonetics of emphasis for intensity in [wh+Prt]-questions: A production study — 126

III A unified account of emphasis

- 5 Emphasis and German clause structure — 137
 - 5.1 The German left periphery: Emphasis for contrast — 137
 - 5.2 A unified account of left peripheral emphasis — 140
 - 5.3 ‘Remnant’ issues — 147
- 6 Conclusion: From information structure to the expressive dimension — 151

References — 153

Appendix A — 165

Appendix B — 177

Appendix C — 180

Appendix D — 185

Index — 191