

CONTENTS

List of Illustrations	xi
Acknowledgments	xiii
List of Abbreviations	xvii
Introduction	1
1. Theoretical Perspectives: Temporal Anxieties in the Digital Age	23
Timeless Time	23
Acceleration	26
Resonance	31
Atomization	38
Immediacy	42
The Extended Present	45
Time-Space Compression	50
Network Time	55
Precarious Times	59

2. Historical Perspectives: Modernism and Speed Politics	70
Temporality and the Modern Imagination	70
Two Visions of Late Culture: Friedrich Nietzsche and Thomas Mann	75
Attention, Distraction, and the Modern Conditions of Perception: Georg Simmel and Franz Kafka	82
Modern Man and the Trouble with Time: Franz Kafka's Der Proceß	88
Speed Politics in Robert Walser's Short Prose	95
From Lateness to Latency: Sigmund Freud	105
Conclusion	109
3. Contemporary Perspectives: Precarious Time(s) in Photography and Film	115
Slow Art	115
The Disruption of Linear Time: Michael Wesely's Time Photography	121
The Disruption of Historical Time: Ulrich Wüst's Photobook Später Sommer/Letzter Herbst	134
In the Acoustic Space of the GDR: Christian Petzold's Barbara	147
The Longing for Transcendence: Ulrich Seidl's Paradies: Glaube	156
Disruptive Performances: Maren Ade's Toni Erdmann	168
Conclusion	181
4. Narrating Precariousness	190
Dis/connectedness in Contemporary German Literature	190
Acceleration and Point Time: Clemens Meyer's Als wir träumten	193
Empty Time and the Extended Present: Julia Schoch's Mit der Geschwindigkeit des Sommers and Karen Duve's Taxi	204
The Cult of Immediacy and the Search for Resonance: Wilhelm Genazino's Das Glück in glücksfernen Zeiten	215

The Search for Transcendence: Arnold Stadler's Sehnsucht: Versuch über das erste Mal and Salvatore	231
Precarious Times, Precarious Lives: Jenny Erpenbeck's Gehen, ging, gegangen	247
Conclusion	273
Epilogue: Presentist Dystopias or the Case for Environmental Humanities	282
Bibliography	289
Index	309

