Figures

1.1. Most frequent perpetrators of foreign-imposed regime change, 1816–2008	31
1.2. Most frequent targets of foreign-imposed regime change, 1816–2008	32
1.3. Temporal distribution of foreign-imposed regime changes, 1816–2008	33
1.4. Foreign-imposed regime changes by region, 1816–2008	35
1.5. A typology of foreign-imposed regime change	36
1.6. Frequencies of different types of foreign-imposed regime changes, 1816–2008	38
2.1. A diagram of the theory	41
3.1. Number of foreign-imposed regime changes followed by civil war and number of civil wars following regime change within a decade	97
3.2. Proportion of foreign-imposed regime changes followed by civil war within a decade	97
3.3. Annual probability of civil war onset in the decade after foreign-imposed regime change	98

FIGURES AND TABLES

3.4. Marginal effects of types of foreign-imposed regime change on civil war onset controlling for the effects of other variables	99
3.5. The effect of institutional regime change on civil war onset contingent on the target's level of economic development	101
3.6. The effect of institutional regime change on civil war onset contingent on the target's level of ethnolinguistic fractionalization	102
3.7. The effect of foreign-imposed regime change on civil war onset contingent on target concurrently losing an interstate war	103
3.8. Marginal effects of control variables on civil war onset	146
3.9. Marginal effects of types of foreign-imposed regime change after matching	152
3.10. Marginal effects of successful versus failed foreign-imposed regime changes	155
4.1. Number and percentage of foreign-imposed leaders, leader-spell data (1875–2004)	167
4.2. Number and percentage of foreign-imposed leaders, leader-year data (1919–2004)	167
4.3. Rates of irregular and regular removal for foreign-imposed leaders (leader-spell data)	168
4.4. Years to irregular and regular removal for foreign-imposed leaders (leader-spell data)	169
4.5. Kaplan Meier survivor functions for types of foreign-imposed regime change and irregular removal from office (leader-spell data)	172
4.6. Kaplan Meier survivor functions for foreign-imposed regime change and regular removal from office (leader-spell data)	174
4.7. Hazard rates of irregular removal after foreign-imposed regime change, no control variables included	176
4.8. Hazard rates of irregular removal after foreign-imposed regime change, control variables included	177
4.9. Hazard rates of regular removal after foreign-imposed regime change, no control variables included	178

4.10. Hazard rates of regular removal after foreign-imposed regime change, control variables included	178
4.11. Postgenetic matching hazard rates of irregular removal after foreign-imposed regime change (leader-spell data)	234
4.12. Postgenetic matching hazard rates of regular removal after foreign-imposed regime change (leader-spell data)	234
5.1. Number and percentage of militarized interstate disputes after foreign-imposed regime changes	250
5.2. Bivariate relationships between foreign-imposed regime change and the probability of militarized interstate disputes	251
5.3. Predicted annual probabilities of militarized interstate disputes in the decade after foreign-imposed regime change	252
5.4. Marginal effect of foreign-imposed regime change on similarity of United Nations General Assembly voting	254
5.5. Marginal effect of foreign-imposed regime change on similarity of alliance portfolios	255
5.6. Marginal effect of foreign-imposed regime change on probability of militarized interstate disputes after genetic matching	292
5.7. Marginal effect of foreign-imposed regime change on similarity of United Nations General Assembly voting after genetic matching	296
5.8. Marginal effect of foreign-imposed regime change on similarity of alliance portfolios after genetic matching	296

Tables

1.1. Successful cases of foreign-imposed regime change, 1816–2011	28
2.1. Military disintegration and the likelihood of civil war	50
3.1. Cases of foreign-imposed regime change followed by civil wars	95
3.2. Probit estimates of foreign-imposed regime change and civil war onset	142

FIGURES AND TABLES

3.3. Probit estimates of foreign-imposed regime change and civil war onset: interaction effects	147
3.4. T-tests of leadership versus institutional and restoration foreign-imposed regime changes and factors correlated with civil war	153
3.5. T-tests of successful versus failed foreign-imposed regime changes and factors correlated with civil war	155
4.1. Foreign-imposed leaders and how they left office, 1875–2004	164
4.2. Variables in the leader-year and leader-spell datasets	223
4.3. Competing risks analysis of irregular removal from office, 1919–2004, leader-year data	224
4.4. Competing risks analysis of irregular removal from office, 1875–2004, leader-spell data	226
4.5. Competing risks analysis of regular removal from office, 1919–2004, leader-year data	229
4.6. Competing risks analysis of regular removal from office, 1875–2004, leader-spell data	231
4.7. T-tests of leadership versus institutional and restoration foreign-imposed regime changes and factors correlated with irregular leader removal	233
5.1. Cease-fires in interstate wars with foreign-imposed regime change, 1914–2001	240
5.2. Militarized interstate disputes between interveners and targets within ten years of a foreign-imposed regime change, 1816–2000	249
5.3. Probit models of foreign-imposed regime change and initiation of militarized interstate disputes, 1816–2000	288
5.4. Foreign-imposed regime change and voting similarity in the United Nations General Assembly, 1946–2000	294
5.5. Foreign-imposed regime change and similarity in alliance portfolios, 1816–2000	295
