Tables

2.1	Relationships and generations of legacy candidates and MPs in Japan	56
2.2	Demographic and occupational backgrounds of non-legacy and legacy MPs in Japan	62
4. I	Party variation in intraparty and intracamp competition and centralization of the candidate selection process in prereform Japan	125
4.2	Aspects of change in elections and candidate selection in Japan	160
5.1	Success rates of non-legacy and legacy candidates across electoral systems	188
5.2	Success rates of different types of first-time LDP and LDP-affiliated candidates in MMDs	198
7 . I	The dynastic bias in gender representation in twelve democracies	248
7.2	Legislative activity of LDP MPs, 1980-2009	254
А.1	Detailed breakdown of legacy candidates by party, 1947–2014	274
A.2	Detailed breakdown of legacy MPs by party, 1947–2014	275
A.3	Legacy and hereditary candidates in each party or camp, 1947–1993	276

A.4	Predicting dynastic succession in the LDP, 1958–1990	277
A.5	Number of applicants and approved candidates in official DPJ open-recruitment contests	279
A.6	Number of applicants and districts for official LDP open-recruitment contests	279
A.7	Number and percentage of legacy candidates, 1976–2014	280
A.8	First-time legacy and hereditary candidates in each party, 1996–2014	282
A.9	Predicting dynastic succession in the LDP, 1993-2012	283
А.10	OLS regression estimates of the electoral advantage of different types of first-time LDP and LDP-affiliated candidates in MMDs, 1958–1993	285
А.11	OLS regression estimates of the electoral advantage of first-time LDP hereditary successors in MMDs, 1958–1993	286
A.12	OLS regression estimates of the electoral advantage of first-time LDP legacy candidates in SMDs, 2000–2009	287
A.13	OLS regression estimates of the legacy advantage in ministerial selection across different institutional periods, 1947–2016	289
A.14	Negative binomial regression estimates of length of speeches spoken on the floor	291
A.15	Negative binomial regression estimates of length of speeches spoken in committees	292
В.і	Interviews with Japanese politicians and party organization personnel	297