

Contributors

---

SVETLANA BOYM is Assistant Professor of Comparative Literature at Harvard University and the author of Death in Quotation Marks: Cultural Myths of the Modern Poet, as well as articles on Mandelstam, Mayakovsky, Barthes, Benjamin, and Soviet cinema. She is the author of a play, The Woman Who Shot Lenin, and a short film, Flirting with Liberty. Her current scholarly project is Common Places: Mythologies of Everyday Life in Russia.

DIANA LEWIS BURGIN, Professor of Russian at the University of Massachusetts in Boston, is the author of Richard Burgin, a Life in Verse, a biographical narrative poem written in the Onegin stanza about her relationship with her father and how she came to be a Slavist. In a purely scholarly vein, she has written articles on Pushkin, Tolstoy, Dostoevsky, Bulgakov, Solzhenitsyn, and Parnok. Her most recent research has been on the life and creative evolution of Sophia Parnok, whose lyrics she has translated into English verse.

JANE T. COSTLOW is Associate Professor of Russian at Bates College. She is the author of Worlds Within Worlds: The Novels of Ivan Turgenev and of several essays on nineteenth-century Russian women's writing.

HELENA GOSCILO, Associate Professor of Slavic Languages and Literatures at the University of Pittsburgh, has written articles on Pushkin, Lermontov, Tolstoy, Bulgakov, and contemporary Russian women's fiction. Her translations include Lermontov's Vadim, Nagibin's The Peak of Success and Other Stories, Russian and Polish Women's Fiction, Balancing Acts, and Glasnost: An Anthology of Russian Literature Under Gorbachev. Her current projects include book-length studies of Tatyana Tolstaya, current Russian women's fiction, and a volume of interviews with current Russian female authors.

BARBARA HELDT, Professor of Russian at the University of British Columbia, is the author of Terrible Perfection: Women and Russian Literature.

CATRIONA KELLY, Research Fellow in Russian at Christ Church, Oxford University, is the author of Petrushka, the Russian Carnival Puppet Theatre and of articles on Symbolist poetry and Russian popular culture. She is the co-editor of Discontinuous Discourses in Modern Russian Literature; in addition she has translated Leonid Borodin's The Third Truth and the prose of Sergei Kaledin.

EVE LEVIN, Associate Professor of History at Ohio State University, is the author of Sex and Society in the World of the Orthodox Slavs, 900–1700. She is also Associate Editor of Russian Review.

ERIC NAIMAN, Assistant Professor of Comparative Literature and Slavic Languages and Literatures at the University of California, Berkeley, is completing a book on sexuality in early Soviet culture.

CATHY POPKIN, Associate Professor of Russian at Columbia University, is the author of The Pragmatics of Insignificance: Chekhov, Zoshchenko, Gogol.

STEPHANIE SANDLER, Associate Professor of Russian and of Women's and Gender Studies at Amherst College, is the author of Distant Pleasures: Alexander Pushkin and the Writing of Exile. She is completing a book on myths of Pushkin in Russian culture.

JANE A. SHARP is a former Project Assistant Curator at the Solomon R. Guggenheim Museum, New York City. She recently completed her Ph.D. in art history at Yale University, and she teaches at Vassar College.

JUDITH VOWLES works on eighteenth-century Russian literature. She collaborated with Beth Goldring on a translation of Maria Ioffe's One Night, and has translated Sophie Dubnov-Erlich's The Life and Work of S. M. Dubnov.

ELIZABETH A. WOOD is Assistant Professor of History at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. She recently completed her dissertation, "NEP and Its Discontents: Gender and Politics in Soviet Russia, 1918–1928."