

Acknowledgments

The editors would like to extend their thanks to a number of individuals and organizations for their help in making this publication possible. For their various and invaluable forms of financial support—including funding a three-day conference held at the Université de Montréal in 2004—we would first of all like to thank the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada, the Fonds québécois de la recherche sur la société et la culture, the Canadian Centre for German and European Studies (Montréal branch), the Université de Montréal and its Département de philosophie, and the Department of Philosophy of McGill University. Additionally, we would like to thank Daniel Weinstock and Joseph Heath for their support. A number of other individuals have been of enormous help to us in a number of ways. In particular, we would like to express our gratitude to the following people (in alphabetical order): Alia Al-Saji, Suzanne Auger, Diane Bergeron, Jay Bernstein, Luce Botella, Brigitte Boulay, Frédérick Bruneault, Philip Buckley, Josée Carignan, Ian Chuprun, Karl Côté, Suzanne Dagenais, Philippe Despoix, Jocelyne Doyon, Maxime Doyon, Matthias Fritsch, Lucille Gendron, Jean Grondin, Susan-Judith Hoffmann, Dietmar Köveker, Philippe Langlois, Michel Ledoux, Claudine Lefort, Jessica Lim, R.T.M. McKnight, David Ouellette, Michael Palamarek, Claude Piché, Scott Prentice, Jamie Smith, Julien Théorêt, and Gregory Young. Special appreciation goes to Nicholas Walker, for translating Josef Früchtel's contribution, and to Philip Farah, for editorial assistance. Finally, the editors would like to thank their respective home institutions, the Université de Montréal and the State University of New York at Buffalo, for their diverse forms of support.