ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This book would have been impossible to write without the help of family, friends, colleagues, librarians, archivists, and various organizations. I am indebted to all of them. First of all, I would like to thank the Department of History at the University of Nebraska–Lincoln (UNL) and its chair, James Le Sueur, for their support. My colleagues in the department have been a source of inspiration in the completion of this project. I specifically want to thank Tim Borstelmann, Barb Bullington, David Cahan, Deirdre Cooper Owens, Breana Garretson, James Garza, Jennifer Garza, Vanessa Gorman, Margaret Jacobs, Jeannette Jones, Tim Mahoney, Gerald Steinacher, William G. Thomas III, and Alexander Vazansky.

Marc David Baer, Ronald Grigor Suny, Mehmet Polatel, Michelle Tusan, and Christine Philliou read drafts of this book. Their comments and constructive criticisms were very helpful in shaping the final version—I am indebted to them all. I would also like to thank the two anonymous reviewers for their outstanding feedback on earlier versions of the manuscript; their thoughtful comments brought the book into fruition. Tom Aldrich read and commented very closely on multiple drafts. His suggestion and comments were extremely useful in shaping this book.

This project would not have been possible without the support of Kate Wahl, Stanford University Press (SUP) editor in chief. Caroline McKusick, the assistant editor at SUP, played an important role in submitting this project to SUP. I would also like to thank Jessica Ling and Charlie Clark, production editors. Special thanks to Adriana Smith for copyediting.

In the course of researching and writing this book, I was the recipient of multiple grants that enabled me to complete this endeavor. I would like to thank the College of Arts and Sciences at UNL for the ENHANCE grant; the Calouste Gulbenkian Foundation-Armenian Communities Department and its director Razmik Panossian; and the Harris Center for Judaic Studies at UNL for supporting this project through travel grants that enabled me to conduct research in multiple archives. The assistance given by the staff of archives, libraries, and research institutions was extremely valuable for the completion of this book. I would like to thank the directors and staff of the Presidency's Ottoman Archives in Istanbul, Turkey; the Ministère de l'Europe et des Affaires étrangères, Centre des Archives diplomatiques in La Courneuve and Nantes, France; Archives jésuites (AJV), Vanves, Paris; The National Archives, UK; the Armenian National Archives and its director, Amadouni Virabyan; the archives at the Madenataran Library; the Armenian Genocide Museum-Institute Archives and its former director Hayk Demoyan in Yerevan, Armenia; the Armenian Revolutionary Federation Archives in Watertown, MA, and its director, George Aghjayan; the United States National Archives in College Park, MD; the Minnesota Historical Society Archives (United States); the Rare Book & Manuscript Library at Columbia University in the City of New York; the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions (ABCFM) Archives, Cambridge, MA; the Gulbenkian Library in Jerusalem; the National Association for Armenian Studies and Research (NAASR) in Belmont, MA; the Archives of the Armenian Patriarchate of Jerusalem (AAPJ); the Armenian Research Center at the University of Michigan-Dearborn and its director, Ara Sanjian; and the AGBU Nubar Library in Paris and its director, Boris Adjemian, for their indispensable help and assistance in providing me with most of the primary sources that I needed for this research. I would like to thank Graham S. Haber, senior photographer at The Morgan Library & Museum, for producing the copy of the photograph of Hagop Babigian. Special thanks to Sylvie Merian for providing me with a copy of the interview with her grandmother Alice (Babikian) Maremetdjian, the daughter of Hagop Babigian, the deputy of the Ottoman Parliament (1908–9).

On a personal level I would like to thank Sebouh Aslanian and Jean Cahan, who have been longtime friends and a source of unconditional support and encouragement. I would also like to give special thanks to Barlow Der Mugrdechian, Richard Hovannisian, Marc Mamigonian, Seda Ohanian, and Uğur Ümit Üngör for providing unconditional support in the course of writing this book. The following individuals have been particularly helpful: Sossie Andezian, Christos Argyropoulos, Ari Ariel, Stephan Astourian, Karen Barkey, Michael Bobelian, Tamar Boyadjian, Serhat Bozkurt, Talar Chahinian, Yaşar Tolga Cora, Asya Darbinyan, Lerna Ekmekcioglu, Rachel Goshgarian, Edita Gzoyan, George Hintlian, Mary Hoogasian, Elizabeth Johnston, Hilmar Kaiser, Haig Kazazian, Raymond Kévorkian, Shushan Khachatryan, Rashid Khalidi, Sergio La Porta, Suren Manukyan, Harutyun Marutyan, Vartan Matiossian, Mihran Minassian, Sato Moughalian, Claire Mouradian, Devin Naar, Tsolin Nalbantian, Katia Peltekian, Greg Sarkissian, Linda Sayed, Vahram Shemmassian, Ari Şekeryan, Nader Sohrabi, Victoria Stamadianou, Vahé Tachjian, Nader Uthman, Ani Voskanyan, Keith Watenpaugh, Heghnar Zeitlian Watenpaugh, İpek Yosmaoğlu, and Malina Zakian. I would like to thank Andreas Batalas and Alexandra Stamadianou for translating the relevant Greek newspaper articles. Special thanks to Patrick Hoehne for meticulously preparing the maps.

None of this would have been possible without the support of my family. First of all, I am indebted to my family in Jerusalem: my mother, Haiganush; my aunts Osanna and Salwa; my sister Victoria; my brother Mihran; my sister-in-law Naira; my nieces Talar and Kohar; and my nephew Vartan, who have been a source of encouragement and support. My father, Vartan, passed away few years ago without being able to witness the completion of this book. I am sure he would have been elated to see the book in its final form. Similarly, my family in the US has been a source of constant support. I would like to thank my father and mother in-law, Jerair and Shakeh Siyahian, and my sisters-in-law Ani and Aida Siyahian for genuinely supporting me in my academic career.

This book would not have been written without the affection, care, and unconditional support of my inimitable wife, Arpi Siyahian. Working on the theme of massacre and genocide is never an easy task. She made the writing process much easier by providing doses of love and encouragement on a daily basis. Our young daughters, Knar and Yeraz, have been the source of constant joy and inspiration, and it is to them that I dedicate this book.
