

Acknowledgments

It takes a village to “raise” a book, and we are grateful for the feedback of colleagues who offered feedback and advice on this project at various stages: Michelle Brown, Hank Fradella, Stuart Henry, Caley Horan, Alex Milla, Ryan Murphy, Keramet Reiter, Alessandra Rellini, and Colin Reynolds. Particular thanks go to Renée Cramer and Ashley Rubin, who read and commented on multiple drafts of the manuscript. Michelle Lipinski’s editorial enthusiasm for this project in its earliest stages convinced us to turn it into a book and submit it to the “Cultural Lives of the Law” series at Stanford University Press. We are grateful for the support of the press and, in particular, Sunna Juhn and Marcela Maxfield. Emory undergraduate students Sueda Polat and Jenna Yun provided exceptional research assistance. Finally, we appreciate the ongoing intellectual and logistical support we receive from our colleagues in the School of Public Affairs at San Diego State University and the Department of History at Emory University.

Parts of the introduction and chapters 2 and 4 have been published elsewhere in different forms. Some of the material on To Catch a Predator appeared in Law, Culture, and Humanities 15, no. 1 (2019): 127–50. Some of the material on Making a Murderer appeared in Crime, Media, Culture 16, no. 1 (2020): 81–96. We introduced crimesploitation as a term in contributions to The Oxford Research Encyclopedia of Criminology and Criminal Justice (2017) and The Routledge International Handbook of Visual Criminology (2017).

Our work has benefited from feedback we received from colleagues at the Annual Meetings of the American Criminology Society, the Association for the Study of Law, Culture, and the Humanities, the Law and Society Association, and the Western Society for Criminology. Finally, this work benefited from financial support given by Emory University College of Arts and Sciences and the Princeton University Program in Law and Public Affairs.

Our friends and family sustained us through the years we've worked on this project. Daniel thanks Dana Bontemps, Joey Brakefield, Rachel Buchberger, Nick Eigen, Nihad Farooq, Andy Grover, Jeff Hnilicka, Karen and John LaChance, Amanda Mahnke, Todd Michney, Melissa Mines, Annie Murray-Close, Zak Taylor, Dan Weiner, and Ali John Zarrabi. Paul thanks Peter M. Blair, Dimitri A. Bogazianso, Brian Goeltzenleuchter, Peri Good, Valerie Hastie, David Jancsics, Jasper Kaplan, Jeffrey P. Kaplan, Julie O'Connor-Quinn, Charlie Pizarro, SMART and We Agnostics Buddies, and Sylvia Valenzuela.

Crimesploitation

This page intentionally left blank