

Acknowledgments

We are grateful for the assistance of many individuals and institutions who have helped to make this book possible. In particular, we would like to thank the Taipei Economic and Cultural Office (TECO) in San Francisco for its support of the Taiwan Democracy Project at Stanford University over the past decade. As the leaders of the Taiwan Democracy Project, Larry Diamond and Kharis Templeman would like to offer special thanks to the current director general of the TECO San Francisco Office, Joseph Ma, and to the past director, Bruce Fuh, as well as Vice Consul Sabine Chen and her predecessor in that role, Daniel Lin, for their commitment to the activities and conferences of our program. It has been our pleasure to engage them and their colleagues in the TECO office.

The Taiwan Democracy Project is a part of the Center on Democracy, Development, and the Rule of Law (CDDRL), which is in turn one of the research centers within the Freeman Spogli Institute for International Studies (FSI) at Stanford. For most of the period during which this book was produced, Larry Diamond directed CDDRL, but we would like to thank the current CDDRL director, Francis Fukuyama, for his support and interest in the program, as well as the current director of FSI, Ambassador Michael McFaul.

Throughout the long and productive life of the Taiwan Democracy Project, we have benefited from the administrative support of Alice Hazelgrove, who helped to arrange the conference from which this book originated, and who provided her ever-cheerful and efficient support of the activities of the program as we worked to complete the manuscript.

We want to thank Lynne Rienner for her creative assistance in helping to structure, frame, and title the book, and for her enduring commitment to quality and affordable publishing of scholarly books in this challenging

xii Acknowledgments

era for academic publishing. We are also grateful to Steve Barr of Lynne Rienner Publishers for his excellent management of the editorial process, to Tara Joffe for copyediting, and to Robert Swanson for assembling the detailed index. We would also like to thank Bernadette St. John, of St. John and Associates, for her assistance preparing footnotes and references.

Finally, we would like to thank all of the authors in this collection for their patience and commitment as we saw this ambitious project through to completion.

Yun-han Chu
Larry Diamond
Kharis Templeman