

Acknowledgments

This book represents the first product of a new research program, Democracy in Taiwan, at Stanford University's Center on Democracy, Development, and the Rule of Law (CDDRL). We would like to thank CDDRL; its director, Michael McFaul; and its parent organization, the Freeman Spogli Institute for International Studies, for providing a stimulating and welcoming intellectual home for the Democracy in Taiwan program. We particularly extend our thanks to the Taiwan Foundation for Democracy and the Taipei Economic and Cultural Office in San Francisco for their support. We also owe a large debt to the gifted manager of the Democracy in Taiwan program, Eric Chen-hua Yu; to Larry Diamond's administrative assistant, Alice Carter, who has provided invaluable support; to Kathryn Stoner-Weiss, associate director for research; and Alice Kada, administrative manager of CDDRL.

The chapters were improved by the comments of a number of people. For their contributions in this regard, we thank (in addition to the authors in this book) Richard Baum, Melissa Brown, Mao-Kuei Chang, Tsungfu Chen, James Fishkin, K. C. Fung, Thomas Gold, Louisa Greve, Baogang He, Szu-chien Hsu, Samuel C.Y. Ku, Da-chi Liao, Junning Liu, Alice Lyman Miller, Ramon Myers, Andrew Nathan, Barry Naughton, Kevin O'Brien, Minxin Pei, Henry Rowen, Scott Rozelle, Tianjan Shi, Rana Siu, Hongying Wang, and Suisheng Zhao.

We also thank the anonymous reviewers who provided detailed and constructive feedback on the draft chapters; Marilyn Grobschmidt, our able editor at Lynne Rienner Publishers; and not least, Lynne Rienner herself, whose keen sense of what makes for a good scholarly book helped to make this a better one.

—Bruce Gilley
Larry Diamond

