

Editors' Note

This volume of the Haskins Society Journal includes papers read at the 32nd Annual Conference of the Charles Homer Haskins Society at Boston College in November 2013, papers read at earlier Haskins conferences, and individual paper submissions. Maria Cristina La Rocca delivered the C. Warren Hollister Memorial Lecture and Shane Bobrycki's essay received the 2013 Bethell Prize, judged by Kimberly LoPrete of National University of Ireland, Galway. We are delighted to include Simon Keynes's essay which was the Henry Loyn Memorial Lecture at Cardiff University in 2008.

This is the regular volume for 2014. The Editor and Assistant Editor would like to offer thanks to the contributors, anonymous reviewers, and to Caroline Palmer and the excellent staff at Boydell & Brewer Ltd. for their help and patience during the production of this volume.

The Haskins Society Journal is an international refereed journal, and its contents are not limited to papers read at the Society's own conference or at the sessions which it sponsors at Leeds, Kalamazoo, or other venues. Papers on topics in the many fields and periods of the medieval past to which Charles Homer Haskins contributed, including but not limited to Anglo-Saxon, Viking, Norman, and Angevin history as well as the history of the neighboring peoples and territories, are welcome from any scholar. Authors intending to submit are asked to consult the Society's website (www.haskinssociety.org) or write to the Editor (Dr. Laura Gathagan, Department of History, SUNY Cortland, P.O. Box 2000 Cortland, NY 13045-0900, USA; email: laura.gathagan@cortland.edu) or Associate Editor (Dr. William North, Department of History, Carleton College, 1 North College Street, Northfield, MN 55057, USA; email: wnorth@carleton.edu).
