ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I would like to acknowledge the contributions of the authors of the essays that comprise this book, and of other individuals and institutions that have supported our research. First of all, mention should be made of the Paul Mellon Centre for Studies in British Art for having generously supported the publication of this book with a Publication Grant. The University of Warwick, Department of History of Art, has made the project possible by supporting and hosting the conference at which part of the papers published in this volume were given. I am especially grateful to the University of Padua, Dipartimento dei Beni Culturali: archeologia, storia dell'arte, del cinema e della musica, for having awarded me a post-doctoral research fellowship devoted to English alabasters, during which this project and my research matured. I am indebted to Julian Gardner for his help and constructive criticisms. I would also like to express my gratitude to Catherine Blake, Louise Bourdua and Luca Mor. The essays' authors would like to remember and thank Caroline Barron, Chris Caple, Matthew Champion, Claire Cooper, Gavin H. Evans, Mark Evans, Vicky Garlick, Nathalie Jacqueminet, Annika Joy, Julian Luxford, Richard Marks, David Morrison, Freyja Ómarsdóttir, Rebecca Quinton, James Robinson, Iona Shepherd, Paul Sibley, Christian Steer, Jeremy Warren, Rosemary Watt, Paul Williamson, Matthew Winterbottom, Geoffrey White and Roy York.

Finally, I should like to pay tribute to the memory of Philip Weller who sadly died before this volume reached publication. His eloquent words in Chapter 4 must now stand to the memory of a dear and generous colleague.
