

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

We would like to express our gratitude to Sally Groves, Christopher Austin, Sylvia Junge and Timothy Morrison from the Peter Maxwell Davies Estate for supporting this project from the start. All four individuals helped us with a number of queries and granted us permission to access and quote from Davies's journals and diaries. This book benefited enormously from their active encouragement and generosity. We also thank The Peter Maxwell Davies Trust for kindly awarding us a grant to carry out research for this book.

Our thanks also go to Michael Middeke and all the staff at Boydell & Brewer, especially Megan Milan, for supporting this project and for helping to bring it to fruition. We are grateful to Intermusica and to Davies's various publishers for their assistance, in particular Hannah Waddell (Boosey & Hawkes), James Rushton and James Gower-Smith (Chester Music) and Ian Mylett (Schott Music) for providing copies of some works which were not readily available in print.

We wish to thank Cardiff University's School of Music for providing financial support with copyright permission fees, and the staff in the Rare Books and the Music Reading Room at the British Library – in particular Andra Patterson, Chris Scobie and, previously, Nicolas Bell – for their help with various queries, and for facilitating access to materials which have not yet been catalogued. We also pay tribute to the late Kenneth Gloag – musicologist, friend and advocate of Davies's music – by dedicating this book to his memory.

Nicholas Jones would like to thank his parents for their loving support of him and his work, and his wife, Bethan, and children, Hywel, Rhys and Catrin, for their caring encouragement and patience throughout this project. He would also like to thank his colleague Christoph Knöpfel for his help with the German translations in Chapter 7, and Mark Barret at Cardiff University's Library Service for his helpful assistance. And finally, he would like to thank Richard McGregor for his continuous personal and professional support and encouragement over a twenty-year period.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Richard McGregor would like to thank colleagues at the University of Cumbria and Musica Scotica: the conferences of the latter were particularly helpful places to try out some ideas on Davies's music in a supportive and helpful environment. Over many years there have been numerous colleagues who have offered assistance, friendship and guidance, and it would be difficult to name them all, but he would particularly like to express his gratitude to Graham Hair, Peter Owens, and, saving his blushes, his co-author Nick Jones. Finally, to his now extended family, over several decades, his thanks for giving him the space and time to disappear to research and write, and last but not least, his thanks to his wife Phillipa for her unfailing support these past five years.
