

CONTRIBUTORS

Todd Andrew Borlik is Senior Lecturer in English at the University of Huddersfield. He is the author of Ecocriticism and Early Modern English Literature (Routledge, 2011), Literature and Nature in the English Renaissance: An Ecocritical Anthology (Cambridge, 2019), and scholarly articles in publications such as Shakespeare Quarterly, Shakespeare Survey, Shakespeare Bulletin and the Shakespearean International Yearbook.

Daniel Cattell received his PhD from the University of Exeter, and has been a Research Fellow on the AHRC-funded Poly-Olbion Project.

Shannon Garner recently received her PhD in English from Northeastern University, where her doctoral research focused on Early Modern Romance and Ecotheory.

Andrew Hadfield is Professor of English at the University of Sussex, and the author of monographs including Edmund Spenser: A Life (Oxford, 2012), Shakespeare and Republicanism (Cambridge, 2005), Shakespeare, Spenser and The Matter of Britain (Palgrave, 2003), and Lying in Early Modern English Culture from the Oath of Supremacy to the Oath of Allegiance (Oxford, 2017).

Bernhard Klein is Professor of English at the University of Kent, and the author of books including Maps and the Writing of Space in Early Modern England and Ireland (Palgrave, 2001) and On the Uses of History in Recent Irish Writing (Manchester, 2007).

Sjoerd Levelt is a Senior Research Associate at the University of Bristol, and was formerly a Research Fellow on The Poly-Olbion Project. He won the Society for Renaissance Studies Book Prize 2012 for his book Jan van Naaldwijk's Chronicles of Holland: Continuity and Transformation in the Historical Tradition of Holland during the Early Sixteenth Century (Verloren, 2011).

Andrew McRae is Professor of Renaissance Studies and Dean of Postgraduate Research at the University of Exeter, and the author of studies including Literature and Domestic Travel in Early Modern England (Cambridge, 2009), Literature, Satire and the Early Stuart State (Cambridge, 2004), and God Speed the Plough (Cambridge, 1996). He is co-editing Michael Drayton's Poly-Olbion with Philip Schwyzer.

Philip Schwyzer is Professor of Renaissance Literature at the University of Exeter, and the author of books including Shakespeare and the Remains of Richard III (Oxford, 2013), Archaeologies of English Renaissance Literature (Oxford, 2007), and Literature, Nationalism, and Memory in Early Modern England and Wales (Cambridge, 2004). He is co-editing Michael Drayton's Poly-Olbion with Andrew McRae.

Sara Trevisan studied at the University of Padua. After working as a lecturer and postdoctoral researcher in Renaissance Studies in Britain and the US, she is now a rare books and manuscripts specialist in the antiquarian book trade and Honorary Research Fellow at the University of Warwick. Her book Royal Genealogy in the Age of Shakespeare is forthcoming for Boydell & Brewer/The British Library..

Angus Vine is Lecturer in Early Modern Literature at the University of Stirling. He is the author of In Defiance of Time: Antiquarian Writing in Early Modern England (Oxford, 2010) and Miscellaneous Order: Manuscript Culture and the Early Modern Organization of Knowledge (Oxford, 2019).