

Contents

List of Maps and Illustrations	vii
Acknowledgments	viii
Introduction	1
Warwick Anderson, Ricardo Roque, and Ricardo Ventura Santos

PART I. PICTURING AND READING FREYRE

1. Gilberto Freyre's View of Miscegenation and Its Circulation in the Portuguese Empire, 1930s–1960s Cláudia Castelo	23
2. Gilberto Freyre: Racial Populism and Ethnic Nationalism Jerry Dávila	45
3. Anthropology and Pan-Africanism at the Margins of the Portuguese Empire: Trajectories of Kamba Simango Lorenzo Macagno	68

PART II. IMAGINING A MIXED-RACE NATION

4. Eugenics, Genetics, and Anthropology in Brazil: The Masters and the Slaves , Racial Miscegenation, and Its Discontents Robert Wegner and Vanderlei Sebastião de Souza	89
5. Gilberto Freyre and the UNESCO Research Project on Race Relations in Brazil Marcos Chor Maio	112
6. "An Immense Mosaic": Race Mixing and the Creation of the Genetic Nation in 1960s Brazil Rosanna Dent and Ricardo Ventura Santos	135

PART III. THE COLONIAL SCIENCES OF RACE

7. The Racial Science of Patriotic Primitives:
António Mendes Correia in Portuguese Timor
Ricardo Roque 159

8. Reassessing Portuguese Exceptionalism: Racial Concepts and Colonial Policies toward the “Bushmen” in Southern Angola, 1880s–1970s
Samuël Coghe 184

9. “Anthrobiology,” Racial Miscegenation, and Body Normality:
Comparing Biogeographical Studies in Brazil and Portugal,
1930–1940
Ana Carolina Vimieiro-Gomes 215

PART IV. PORTUGUESENESS IN THE TROPICS

10. Luso-tropicalism Debunked, Again: Race, Racism, and Racialism in Three Portuguese-Speaking Societies
Cristiana Bastos 243

11. Being Goan (Modern) in Zanzibar: Mobility, Relationality, and the Stitching of Race
Pamila Gupta 265

Afterword I. Mixing the Global Color Palette
Nélia Dias 287

Afterword II. Luso-tropicalism and Mixture in the Latin American Context
Peter Wade 296

Index 307