

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Earlier versions of the chapters in this edited volume were originally published by L'Harmattan Italia under the title Antropologia della crisi in 2016. We wish to thank Elisa Pellizzari of L'Harmattan Italia for granting clearance to the publication of all the chapters in revised and updated form.

The English version of this book would have never come about without the help and encouragement of Michael Blim. Our biggest thank you goes to him. We also wish to thank Don Kalb in his capacity as coeditor of the Dislocations book series for accepting our invitation to write an Afterword.

We also want to acknowledge some relevant influences underlying our work: Enzo Mingione, Amalia Signorelli (in her memory), Susana Narotzky, Gavin Smith and Sylvia Yanagisako. They were not directly involved in this book, but their works and suggestions have been an inspiration to us.

We would like to thank the anonymous referee for their insightful comments on the draft version of the manuscript. We are grateful to Giuseppe Vittucci for being so helpful and taking his time to find data and update charts and tables. We also want to express our gratitude towards all the contributors who embarked on this project and in particular the economist Andrea Fumagalli for his open-mindedness in debating with anthropologists. Last but not least, we would like to thank all our interlocutors and protagonists of the ethnographies who took time away from their activities to talk to us about their own life and work.

Simone Ghezzi thanks his wife Elizabeth Esteves for her helpful suggestions, critiques and support, and their daughter Emily for her joyful presence. He also dedicates his share of this book to the memory of his father Angelo, who passed away during the drafting of the manuscript. Fulvia D'Aloisio thanks her mother for her helpful support and Francesco for his always intelligent and witty comments.
