

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

There are a number of people who have helped and encouraged us and without whom this book would not have been possible. It is impossible to count the many ways and times we have been assisted and supported – or to account for our deep appreciation of people including Rogelio Alonso, Fidelma Ashe, Arthur Aughey, Philip Bradfield, Máire Braniff, Paul Dixon, Jeffrey Dudgeon, Colin Harper, Eoghan Harris, Thomas Hennessey, Stephen Hopkins, Ben Lowry, Karl O'Connor, Eamonn O'Kane and Henry Patterson. Liam Kennedy has been a constant, constructive and critical encourager. Amanda Horn and the team at Berghahn could not have been more helpful.

Kenny Donaldson and the South East Fermanagh Foundation have, consistently and throughout, given access to their archived documents and records. They have also facilitated interviews with their members and contacts that form a considerable part of this book. It is those innocent victims and survivors who recounted their testimonies that deserve a special mention.

Ken would like to dedicate the book to his wife Ethel, and to his wider family circle. Our murdered brother Ronnie is never far from our thoughts.

Cillian would like to dedicate the book to Maya and Félix.
