A mong all the many people, too numerous to mention, who made this volume possible, we would like to thank in particular those who were part of the organization and implementation of the 17th Mega-Chad colloquium and were instrumental in the publication of this book. The authors thank the partners of this event, which was devoted to insecurity in the Lake Chad Basin and was held in June 2017 at the University of Nice Sophia Antipolis.

The colloquium received funding from several scientific and development organizations. Four research laboratories, two research institutes, and one university linked to the editors of this work financially supported the conference and/or the publication of this volume: Unités Mixtes de Recherche (UMR): Archéologies et Sciences de l'Antiquité (ArScAn); Cultures et Environnements. Préhistoire, Antiquité, Moyen Âge (CEPAM); Laboratoire interdisciplinaire solidarités, sociétés, territoires (LISST) and Pôle de recherche pour l'organisation et la diffusion de l'information géographique (PRODIG); the Centre National de la Recherche Scientifique (CNRS); and the Institut de Recherche pour le Développement (IRD), as well as the University of Nice Sophia Antipolis. CEPAM played a more specific role in supporting and hosting the conference. The University of Leiden also funded the costs for one young scholar.

The international opening of the event was made possible by substantial financial aid from the French Development Agency (AFD), the University Agency for Francophonie (AUF), the French Embassy in Chad, and the French Institute for Research in Africa (IFRA) in Nigeria. The AFD also contributed to the conference with a paper on the links between security and development, a theme it has been reflecting and acting upon for a number of years. Several of these institutions also helped in facilitating visas for the travel of scholars from Africa.

Our thanks also go to photographers Pascal Maitre and Pierre Terdjman, cartographers Najla Touati and Catherine Valton, the late ethnoarchaeologist Nicholas David for his proofreading of the English abstracts, and to the peer reviewers of the texts in this volume.

The scientific directors extend special thanks to Walter E.A. van Beek for the English translation of this book and his role in the exchanges between IRD editions and Berghahn Books. Thanks to the two editors for their meticulous work.
