

CONTENTS

Acknowledgements	ix
Introduction	1
I. Jesus of Love: the profane passion and holy spirit of the young poet's Cristo	9
The dialectic of flesh and spirit	13
The flesh and its limits	17
Más allá : the realm of the spirit	20
The inversion of gender	27
A young man's vision	32
II. Mariana Pineda: iconic martyr to Love	35
Which Mariana?	35
The play: its subject, structure and plot	37
From estampa to performance	43
From the material to the ethereal	47
The spiritual realm of dream and death	50
Mariana the martyr: the sacrifice of the body	53
'La Mariana amante': icon of Love	60
III. The sacrifice of identity in Amor de Don Perlimplín con Belisa en su jardín	66
Perlimplín: at the heart of García Lorca's theatre	66
The play's dualisms: plot and themes	69
Don Perlimplín: the monigote humanised	74
'La blanca Belisa': from empty vessel to eternal Love	79
Subversions of identity	84
Ritual and the transforming final sacrifice	93
Towards a production of new subjectivity	98
IV. El público : struggling with identity	101
The 'impossible' drama: homosexuality, structure and style	101
The key dialectic of surface and depth	114
Masculinity in question	126

Bodily boundaries	133
Queer acts: identity and existence as performance	138
V. ¡Hijo de mi alma! – gender inversion and the metaphysical reproduction of the Self in Yerma	142
A woman frustrated? Theme, plot and structure	142
A masculinised Yerma and an effeminate Juan	150
The theory of gender inversion	156
A desire for the Soul and the reproduction of Self	161
VI. Beyond the outer walls: transvestite masquerade and transcendent escape in La casa de Bernarda Alba	169
Subversive acts	169
The photo documentary: drama in black and white	172
From realism to drag performance	175
On symbols and on the signs of Camp	181
The performance of gender	184
Beyond the walls of the house of Alba: Adela's challenge to Bernarda	191
Conclusion	199
Bibliography	205
Index	213

In memory of Jim McEnaney,
for not knowing his geometry

