

Contents

Preface	VII
Yi Xu & Fang Liu Intrinsic coherence of prosodic and segmental aspects of speech	1
Nina Grønnum & Hans Basbøll Danish stød – Towards simpler structural principles?	27
Ilse Lühiste Prosodic allomorphs in the Estonian declension system	47
Hansjörg Mixdorff The application of the Fujisaki model in quantitative prosody research	55
Amalia Arvaniti Rhythm classes and speech perception	75
Jonathan Barnes, Alejna Brugos, Stefanie Shattuck-Hufnagel & Nanette Veilleux On the nature of perceptual differences between accentual peaks and plateaux	93
Susanne Schötz, Gösta Bruce, My Segerup, Jonas Beskow, Joakim Gustafson & Björn Granström Regional varieties of Swedish: Models and synthesis	119
Gilbert Ambrazaitis, Johan Frid & Gösta Bruce Revisiting Southern and Central Swedish intonation from a comparative and functional perspective	135

Oliver Niebuhr & Margaret K. Zellers Late pitch accents in hat and dip intonation patterns	159
Alexander Werth Perceptual evidence for contrast enhancement in tone- intonation interaction	187
Richard Ogden Prosodies in Conversation.....	201
Petra Wagner Meter specific timing and prominence in German poetry and prose	219
Laura C. Dilley, Jessica Wallace & Christopher C. Heffner Perceptual isochrony and fluency in speech by normal talkers under varying task demands	237
Bistra Andreeva & William J. Barry Fine phonetic detail in prosody. Cross-language differences need not inhibit communication	259
Bettina Braun & Aoju Chen Now for something completely different: Anticipatory effects of intonation	289
Short portraits of the authors	313
Author index	319
Subject index	325