

Contents

Acknowledgements

Introduction

Susanne Günthner/Wolfgang Imo/Jörg Bücker — 1

Section I: A dialogic perspective on communicative practices

Arnulf Deppermann

“Don’t get me wrong”: Recipient design by reactive and anticipatory uses of negation to constrain an action’s interpretation — 15

Jan Anward:

Dialogue and tradition: The open secret of language — 53

Section II: A dialogic perspective on clausal patterns

Per Linell/Christine Mertzlufft

Evidence for a dialogical grammar: Reactive constructions in Swedish and German — 79

Elizabeth Couper-Kuhlen/Barbara Fox/Sandra Thompson

Forms of responsivity: Grammatical formats for responding to two types of request in conversation — 109

Wolfgang Imo

Elliptical structures as dialogical resources for the management of understanding — 139

Section III: A dialogic perspective on subordinating constructions

Susanne Günthner

The dynamics of dass-constructions in everyday German interactions – a dialogical perspective — 179

Jörg Bücker

Some observations on free and sentential relative clauses with “was” (‘what’) in German talk-in-interaction — 207

Stefan Pfänder/Marie Skrovec

Fishing for affiliation. The French double causal construction parce que comme from a dialogical linguistics perspective — 241

Section IV: A dialogic perspective on particles and adverbs

Paul Hopper

This, that and the other: Prospection, retraction and obviation in dialogical grammar — 271

Katharina König

Reconstructing the point of reference for stand-alone deswegen — 301

Dagmar Barth-Weingarten

Dialogism and the emergence of final particles: The case of and — 335

Index — 367