

Contents

Acknowledgements — VII

List of Figures — XIII

List of Abbreviations — XV

Introduction — 1

- 1 Concepts and Terminology — 2
- 2 State of Research — 6
- 3 Theoretical Framework — 14
- 4 Chapter Overview — 19

1 “After All, a Woman is Biologically a Child Factory” – Eugenics and the Debate on Family Planning for African Americans in the 1920s and Early 1930s — 23

- 1.1 Historical Background — 25
- 1.2 “The Negro Represents an Intrinsically Inferior Type of Humanity” – African Americans as an Inferior Race and Measures of Negative Eugenics — 28
- 1.3 “We Negroes of Pride Discovered the Theory of Race Purity Long before Hitler” – African Americans as a Superior Race — 34
- 1.4 “The Negro Issue” – Eugenics and the American Birth Control League — 38
- 1.5 The “Talented Tenth” and “Better Baby Contests” – Debates on Positive Eugenics for the Black Community — 43
- 1.6 “I for One Do Not Intend to Contribute Any to the Cause.” – African American Women Voices — 48
- 1.7 Summary — 52

2 “Tomorrow’s Families” – Modernization Discourses and the Changing View on African American Women — 55

- 2.1 Cultural Anthropology and Modernizing Discourses — 57
- 2.2 Matriarchs in the Making – Research on Motherhood from the 1930s to the early 1950s — 62
- 2.3 “What Do I Know About Negro Programs Anyway” – The Birth Control Federation of America and the Foundation of the Negro Division — 72

2.4	Black Women's Organization Turn Their Attention to Birth Control — 83
2.5	Summary — 87
3	"The Zero Population Growth Game" – Debating Black Motherhood in the Age of Population Control — 91
3.1	"Hunger U.S.A." – The Overpopulation Debate and the Liberal Discourse on Birth Control for African American Women — 94
3.2	"Space Minus Opportunity (...) Spells Violence" – "Population Pressure" and Birth Control for African American Women — 101
3.3	"We Charge Genocide" – Birth Control and the Genocide Debate — 105
3.4	"Keep Your Family the Right Size!" – Advise Columns on Black Reproduction in the Black Press — 125
3.5	Summary — 129
4	"A National Effort [to Establish] a Stable Negro Family Structure" – Poverty, Illegitimacy, and Black Motherhood in the 1960s — 131
4.1	Making Motherhood Immoral – Changes in Aid for Families with Dependent Children and the Moynihan Report — 133
4.2	Forced, Coerced, Sought After – Sterilization Practices in the 1950s and 1960s — 153
4.3	Summary — 164
5	In Sickness and in Health – Discussing Reproductive Rights in the Age of Crack, AIDS, and Women's Health — 167
5.1	"The Enemy Within" – African American Motherhood and the "Crack Baby Crisis" — 168
5.2	"Her Husband is an IV-Drug User" – Black Motherhood and HIV/AIDS — 185
5.3	"Being Sick and Tired of Being Sick and Tired" – Black Health Activism in the 1980s — 191
5.4	Summary — 210
	Conclusion and Outlook — 213
1	Continuities and Changes in the Discourse on Reproductive Rights of African American Women in the 20th Century — 214

2	Questions of Class and Gender – African American Agency in the Discourses on Family Planning Services for African American Women — 218
3	Outlook — 220

Bibliography — 223

Index — 243
