

Table of Contents

Ottfried Fraisse

Modern Jewish Scholarship on Islam in Context: Rationality, European Borders, and the Search for Belonging — 1

Yossef Schwartz

Jewish Orientalism Pre-modern and Modern: Epochal Variations of Cultural Hybridity? — 31

Susannah Heschel

The Rise of Imperialism and the German Jewish Engagement in Islamic Studies — 61

A) Self-Definition of the Scholar within Europe: The Self-Interested Inner Side of the European Borders is Unmasked, Though Still Dominant (Position 1)

Ruchama Johnston-Bloom

Gustav Weil's Koranforschung and the Transnational Circulation of Ideas: The Shaping of Muhammad as Reformer — 95

B) Self-Definition of the Scholar outside Europe, However, the Self-Interested Inner Side of the European Borders is Still Effective (Position 2)

Miriam Frenkel

Samuel Abraham Poznański's Karaite Mission: From Wissenschaft to Jewish Nationalism — 121

Gideon Libson

Shlomo Dov Goitein's Research into the Relationship between the Jewish and Muslim Traditions through the Prism of His Predecessors and Colleagues — 145

Noam A. Stillman

Islamici nil a me alienum puto: The Mindset of Jewish Scholars of Islamic Studies — 181

C) Self-Definition of the Scholar within Europe, Though an Ambiguous Perspective on Both Sides of the European Borders is Developed (Position 3)

Irene E. Zwiep

Beyond Orientalism? Steinschneider on Islam, Religion and Plurality — 201

Steven Harvey

The Story of a Twentieth-Century Jewish Scholar's Discovery of Plato's Political Philosophy in Tenth-Century Islam: Leo Strauss' Early Interest in the Islamic Falāsifa — 219

Ottfried Fraisse

Martin Schreiner's Unpublished Systematic Philosophy of Religion: Adapting Ignác Goldziher's Method for Researching Islam — 245

Paul B. Fenton

Salomon Munk and the Franco-Jewish Discovery of Orientalism — 267

Reinhard Schulze

Adapting Andalusian Convivencia: Merging Identities in the Modern Jewish Bourgeoisie — 291

D) Self-Definition of the Scholar outside Europe, However, the Inner Perspective on the European Borders is Critically Evaluated as Part of His View from the Outside (Position 4)

Hanan Harif

The Orient between Arab and Jewish National Revivals: Josef Horovitz, Shelomo Dov Goitein and Oriental Studies in Jerusalem — 319

Yuval Evri

Return to al-Andalus beyond German-Jewish Orientalism: Abraham Shalom Yahuda's Critique of Modern Jewish Discourse — 337

Index of Names — 355

Subject Index — 357

