

Contents

Acknowledgements — v

Abbreviations — xi

1 Introduction — 1

1.1 Insubordination — 2

1.2 Data: Insubordinate complement and conditional constructions in Germanic languages — 6

1.2.1 Insubordinate constructions — 7

1.2.1.1 Complement insubordination — 7

1.2.1.2 Conditional insubordination — 11

1.2.1.3 Other independent subordinate structures — 14

1.2.2 Data collection and methods — 16

1.3 Aims and organization of the study — 19

2 A constructional typology of complement insubordination — 23

2.1 Deontic constructions — 26

2.1.1 Uncontrolled deontic constructions — 28

2.1.1.1 Potential short-range wishes — 29

2.1.1.2 Potential long-range wishes — 31

2.1.1.3 Irrealis wishes — 32

2.1.1.4 Counterfactual wishes — 34

2.1.1.5 Summary — 36

2.1.2 Controlled deontic constructions — 36

2.1.2.1 Strong controlled deontic constructions — 38

2.1.2.2 Weak controlled deontic constructions — 43

2.1.2.3 Summary — 49

2.2 Evaluative constructions — 49

2.2.1 Unexpected evaluatives — 51

2.2.2 Expected evaluatives — 56

2.2.3 Summary — 58

2.3 Assertive constructions — 58

2.4 Conclusions — 62

3 A constructional typology of conditional insubordination — 66

3.1 Deontic constructions — 70

3.1.1 Uncontrolled deontic constructions — 71

- 3.1.1.1 Potential wishes — 72
- 3.1.1.2 Irrealis wishes — 74
- 3.1.1.3 Counterfactual wishes — 78
- 3.1.1.4 Summary — 81
- 3.1.2 Controlled deontic constructions — 82
- 3.1.2.1 Speaker-centered constructions — 84
- 3.1.2.1.1 Requests — 84
- 3.1.2.1.2 Threats — 93
- 3.1.2.2 Addressee-centered constructions — 97
- 3.1.2.2.1 Offers — 98
- 3.1.2.2.2 Suggestions — 101
- 3.1.2.3 Summary — 103
- 3.2 Evaluative constructions — 106
- 3.2.1 Remarkable evaluatives — 107
- 3.2.2 Lower-limit evaluatives — 110
- 3.2.3 Absurd evaluatives — 112
- 3.2.4 Summary — 117
- 3.3 Assertive constructions — 119
- 3.3.1 Assertion of the occurrence of an event — 120
- 3.3.2 Assertion of identification — 121
- 3.3.3 Assertion of qualification — 123
- 3.3.4 Summary — 125
- 3.4 Argumentative constructions — 125
- 3.4.1 Direct arguments — 127
- 3.4.2 Indirect arguments — 133
- 3.4.3 Summary — 136
- 3.5 Reasoning constructions — 136
- 3.6 Conclusions — 141

- 4 External delimitation of insubordination — 147
- 4.1 Elaborative complement constructions and dependency shift — 149
- 4.1.1 Elaborative constructions — 149
- 4.1.2 Dependency shift — 158
- 4.2 Post-modifying conditional constructions and dependency shift — 170
- 4.2.1 Post-modifying constructions — 170
- 4.2.2 Dependency shift — 175

| | | |
|----------|---|------------|
| 4.3 | Constructions with ‘main clause traces’ | 179 |
| 4.4 | Conclusions | 182 |
| 5 | Internal organization of insubordination | 184 |
| 5.1 | Semantic organization | 185 |
| 5.1.1 | Modal | 185 |
| 5.1.2 | Interactional | 194 |
| 5.1.3 | Discursive | 195 |
| 5.2 | Constructional organization | 198 |
| 5.2.1 | Absence of semantic generalization | 199 |
| 5.2.2 | Non-compositional marking | 201 |
| 5.2.3 | Indications of separate developmental paths | 205 |
| 5.3 | Conclusions | 211 |
| 6 | Conclusions | 213 |
| | Questions for further research | 216 |
| | References | 223 |
| | Index | 233 |

