List of tables

Tab. 1: Non-finite verb forms and their core syntactic functions — 6
Tab. 2: Defining features of participles —— 46
Tab. 3: Languages of the core sample by genealogical groups and macroareas —— 47
Tab. 4: Languages with active participles —— 66
Tab. 5: Languages with passive participles —— 74
Tab. 6: Participial markers for relativizing core participants in Matsés —— 76
Tab. 7: Languages with agentive participles —— 77
Tab. 8: Languages with absolutive participles —— 85
Tab. 9: Languages with participles oriented towards non-core participants —— 90
Tab. 10: Languages with contextually oriented participles: relativization up to P —— 97
Tab. 11: Languages with contextually oriented participles: relativization up to IO —— 98
Tab. 12: Languages with contextually oriented participles: relativization up to OBL —— 98
Tab. 13: Languages with contextually oriented participles: relativization up to POSS —— 99
Tab. 14: Languages with participles demonstrating limited contextual orientation —— 105
Tab. 15: Resumptive pronouns in participial relative clauses —— 121
Tab. 16: Finite relative clauses in languages with different participial types —— 126
Tab. 17: Different types of participial orientation across languages —— 127
Tab. 18: Indicative and participial forms in Nanai —— 162
Tab. 19: Participial system in Yakut —— 179
Tab. 20: Negative participles in the languages of the sample —— 182
Tab. 21: Subject encoding in participial relative clauses in Meadow Mari —— 203
Tab. 22: Participial system in Standard Russian —— 227
Tab. 23: Participial system in Modern Standard Arabic —— 228
Tab. 24: Participial system in Tümpisa Shoshone —— 229
Tab. 25: Participial system in Koorete —— 229
Tab. 26: Participial system in Meadow Mari —— 231
Tab. 27: Participial system in Tundra Nenets —— 231
Tab. 28: Participial system in Kalmyk —— 232
Tab. 29: Participial system in Matsés —— 234
Tab. 30: Different types of participial systems across languages —— 239
Tab. 31: Languages with a single inherently oriented participle —— 239
Tab. 32: Languages with a single contextually oriented participle —— 240
Tab. 33: Languages with an orientation-based system —— 241
Tab. 34: Languages with a TAM-based system —— 241
Tab. 35: Languages with an orientation- and TAM-based system —— 242
Tab. 36: Languages with other oppositions and unclassified languages — 243
Tab. 37: Constituent order in languages with different participial types — 247
Tab. 38: Position of participial relative clauses in languages with different participial types —— 247