

Acknowledgements

Many people have graciously assisted us in developing The Knowledge Services Handbook: A Guide for the Knowledge Strategist. Like most authors, we are deeply grateful and, at the same time, if we have omitted anyone who worked with us, we sincerely regret the omission.

Nevertheless, we are happy to acknowledge the many friends, clients, students, fellow lecturers, and academic faculty, and our colleagues who work with us at De Gruyter, Claudia Heyer and John Ryan.

We also thank the Editorial Board guiding this new series from De Gruyter. This is the first volume in Knowledge Services, and we are proud to have Michelle Dollinger, Susan Henczel, Lee Igel, Anne Kershaw, and co-author Barrie Levy serving on the board.

At the same time, we are particularly grateful to our friends and professional colleagues who have responded to our call for “other voices.” The evidence of their strong commitment to knowledge services as a critical management discipline is clearly demonstrated in their contributions to the book, and we are happy to acknowledge the work of James Brogan, John Callahan, Elizabeth Haas Edersheim, Molly Forester, Stan Garfield, Susan Henczel, Frances Hesselbein, Lee Igel, Anne Kershaw, Kevin Manion, Christopher Mundy, Ben Royce, Kerri Rosalia, Valerie Sichi-Kritzman, and Dale Stanley.

Finally, we must give special recognition to the support and editorial skills of Andrew Berner. He has been a steadfast partner in making our writing better, and we are honored to acknowledge him and to thank him for all that he has done for us.
