Illuminating Metalwork: Metal, Object, and Image in Medieval Manuscripts represents years of development and collaboration. The editors are indebted to the Sense, Matter, and Medium series editors—Fiona Griffiths, Beatrice Kitzinger, and Kathryn Starkey—for their generous, spirited, and painstaking stewardship of this volume. We are especially grateful for Beatrice Kitzinger's early encouragement of the project and her thoughtful input throughout. We also salute the team at De Gruyter—Elisabeth Kempf, Laura Burlon, and Dominika Herbst—for their meticulous and patient guidance of this project, and the two anonymous peer reviewers, whose feedback greatly strengthened the essays.

Support for the research and publication of Illuminating Metalwork was generously provided by the International Center of Medieval Art; the School of Art of the University of Arkansas; and The Medieval Iberian Treasury in Context: Collections, Connections, and Representations on the Peninsula and Beyond (PI Therese Martin, Spanish Ministry of Science, Innovation, and Universities, AEI/FEDER, RTI2018-098615-B-I00). We are grateful to these organizations for their support and investment.

This project originated with a panel at the 2016 Saint Louis Conference on Manuscript Studies at Saint Louis University, and we wish to thank Susan L'Engle for her invitation and enthusiasm about the topic. A series of Zoom workshops, including a keynote address by Nancy K. Turner, took place in August 2020 to facilitate dialogue and exchange among the volume contributors. The editors express their sincerest and most enthusiastic gratitude to our authors, with and from whom we have had the distinct privilege of working and learning.
