

Biographical Notes

Eric Burton (eric.burton@univie.ac.at) is postdoctoral research associate in the project “Socialism goes global”, University of Exeter. He specializes in the entangled histories of development, socialisms and anticolonial liberation struggles with a focus on Tanzania and the two German states. Previously, he was Leibniz Science Campus EEGA guest scholar at Leipzig University and pre-doc researcher and lecturer at the University of Vienna in African Studies, History and Development Studies. Recent publications include articles in “Journeys of education and struggle: African mobility in times of decolonization and the Cold War” (Stichproben/Vienna Journal of African Studies 18 (2018) 34) and “Socialisms in Development” (JEP/Austrian Journal of Development Studies XXXIII (2017) 3).

Lena Dallywater (l_dallywater@ifl-leipzig.de) is academic coordinator of the Leibniz ScienceCampus “Eastern Europe – Global Area” (EEGA). Previously, she was Research Programme Coordinator at the Global and European Studies Institute and the Centre for Area Studies at Leipzig University as well as Coordinator of the DFG Priority Programme (SPP 1448) “Adaptation and Creativity in Africa – Technologies and Significations in the Production of Order and Disorder” (2011–2017). Her research interests include African American Intellectual History, African Intellectual History, African Philosophy, Black Radical Tradition, Black Arts Movement, Black Consciousness Movement, Afrocentrism, Aesthetics, and Global and Transnational History.

Ulf Engel (uengel@uni-leipzig.de) is a professor of “Politics in Africa” at the Institute of African Studies in Leipzig. He is the director of the DFG-funded Ph.D. Research Training Programme (GK 1261): “Critical Junctures of Globalization” (2006–2016), the co-director of the DFG Priority Programme (SPP 1448): “Adaptation and Creativity in Africa – Technologies and Significations in the Production of Order and Disorder” (2011–2017), and the director of the Integrated Research Training Group of the DFG Collaborative Research Centre (SFB 1199): “Processes of Spatialization under the Global Condition”. Engel is also a visiting professor at the Institute for Peace and Security Studies at Addis Ababa University (Ethiopia), a professor extraordinary in the Department of Political Science at Stellenbosch University, and a fellow at the Stellenbosch Institute of Advanced Studies (STIAS, South Africa).

Helder Adegar Fonseca (haf@uevora.pt) is Professor of Contemporary History and senior member of the Department of History and the Research Center in Political Science (UM/UE) at the University of Évora (Portugal). In recent years, he has supervised Ph.D.s working on the Twentieth Century History of Southern Africa and has developed research on “Historical Sources of Transnational Regionalism in Southern Africa: Liberation Movements and White Africa as Driving Forces (1960–1978)”, on which he has several publications.

Nedžad Kuč (nedzad.kuch@univie.ac.at) is a Ph.D. candidate at the Institute for Eastern European History at the University of Vienna. In his dissertation he is exploring Yugoslavia’s educational aid towards African countries, university training and everyday life of African students in Yugoslavia during the Cold War. He studied history in Strasbourg and global history in Vienna.

Milorad Lazic (lazicm@email.gwu.edu) is a Ph.D. candidate in the Department of History at George Washington University. He received a B.A. degree in history from the University of Belgrade (Serbia) and his M.A. degree in history from Central Connecticut State University. Milorad is writing a dissertation on U.S.-Yugoslav relations in the context of the global Cold War in the 1970s.

Chris Saunders (chris.saunders@uct.ac.za) is an Emeritus Professor at the University of Cape Town (UCT). He taught in the Department of Historical Studies at UCT until he retired. He is now attached to UCT's Institute for Democracy, Citizenship and Public Policy in Africa. He is the author of many publications on Southern Africa, most recently "Anti-apartheid, Decolonization and Transnational Solidarity: The Namibian Case", in: A. Konieczna and R. Skinner (eds.), A Global History of Anti-Apartheid. 'Forward to Freedom' in South Africa, Cham: Palgrave Macmillan, 2019.

Anja Schade (anja.schade@gmx.de) is writing her dissertation on the exile of members of the African National Congress in the GDR. Currently, she is an associated researcher at Liliesleaf Museum in Johannesburg for the upcoming permanent exhibition on the GDR's contribution towards the South African liberation struggle. Her second scientific focus is on Holocaust studies. Her biography of Holocaust survivor Ruth Gröne is to be published in 2019.

Natalia Telepneva (n.telepneva@warwick.ac.uk) is a British Academy Post-doctoral Fellow at the University of Warwick, UK. She was previously a Research Fellow at University College London's School of Slavic and East European Studies (UCL SSEES). Her research is focused on Soviet policy in Africa during the Cold War. She is currently preparing for publication a manuscript that investigates Soviet support for the anti-colonial movements in the Portuguese colonies and the internationalisation of the Angolan Civil War, entitled "Cold War Liberation" for the University of North Carolina Press. She has published in the South African Historical Journal and the Journal of Cold War Studies and co-edited "Warsaw Pact in the Third World: Aid and Influence in the Cold War".

Ulrich van der Heyden (heydenul@hu-berlin.de) is Visiting Professor at the University of South Africa, senior lecturer (Privatdozent) at the Free University Berlin, and scientific researcher at the Humboldt-University of Berlin. He holds doctorates and a habilitation from three universities in Germany and South Africa. Of his more than fifty books written or edited and of two hundred scientific articles, a large part deals with the German Africa policy, especially the relationships between GDR and African countries and South African liberation movements.