

Acknowledgments

This book is the revised version of my Ph.D. thesis. I thank my supervisors, Volker Gerhardt, Jürgen Trabant and the late John-Michael Krois, as well as Christian Möckel, for their generous guidance and advice. During the years of my doctorate, I benefited from a stipend from the Kolleg-Forschergruppe “Bildakt und Verkörperung” of the Humboldt-Universität zu Berlin, directed by Horst Bredekamp, John-Michael Krois and Jürgen Trabant. I thank them and all the friends who have worked there for a truly unique research atmosphere.

The final version of the book was completed while I was a research fellow at the Max-Weber-Kolleg für kultur- und sozialwissenschaftliche Studien in Erfurt, thanks to a research grant from the Max-Planck-Forschungspreis “Religion und Moderne: Säkularisation, gesellschaftliche und religiöse Pluralität,” guided by Hans Joas. I thank him not only for the opportunity to work in Erfurt, but also for invaluable help at all stages of my research. I also thank my Max-Weber-Kolleg colleagues for having discussed parts of the manuscript with me. I am particularly grateful to Gabriel Abend, Sebastian Bandelin, Matteo Bortolini, Martin Fuchs, Petra Gümplöva, Christoph Henning, Bettina Hollstein, Urs Lindner, Daniele Miano, Andreas Pettenkofer, Hartmut Rosa, Matteo Santarelli, Magnus Schlette and Emiliano Urciuoli.

My interest in Peirce, pragmatism and the philosophy of history goes back to my student’s years in Pisa. I would like to thank three teachers who have changed the way I think: Alfredo Ferrarin, Aldo Gargani, Carlo Ginzburg.

Thanks to Francesco Bellucci and Ahti-Veikko Pietarinen for agreeing to include my book in the book series Peirceana. Chiara Ambrosio, Francesco Bellucci, Gabriele Gava and Mathias Girel read either the entire final manuscript or chapters thereof and provided invaluable criticism. I thank them most warmly. The director of the Peirce Edition Project, André De Tienne, has not only been an extremely helpful interlocutor over the years; he was also kind enough to let me consult a part of the forthcoming ninth volume of Peirce’s Writings.

Over the years, I have talked with so many colleagues and friends about the ideas of this book that it would be impossible to list them all. Let me thank in particular Andrew Abbott, Lucio Biasiori, Francesco Buscemi, Daniel Cefai, Vincent Colapietro, Franz Engel, Rossella Fabbrichesi, Roberto Frega, Sascha Freyberg, Roberto Gronda, Matthias Jung, Sybille Krämer, Marion Lauschke, Giovanni Maddalena, Sabine Marienberg, David Marshall, Helmut Pape, Moritz Queisner, Frederik Stjernfelt, Maddalena Vaglio Tanet and Amadeu Viana.

In Chapter 1, I have used some excerpts from my article, “Peirce and Iconology,” in: European Journal of Pragmatism and American Philosophy 4. No. 1

(2012). Thanks to the journal editors for their permission to make use of this material.

Thanks to Jay Lingham for her linguistic help.

Finally, I am grateful to all the friends and family who stood by me throughout the years. And this book is for Maddalena, who was there from the start.
