

Acknowledgments

We wish to thank our academic friends who have supported and motivated us to write the book in its simplest way so that all students can understand the real problems and their solutions related to machining of alloys and engineering materials.

We like to acknowledge and thank our students, faculty members, and technical staff who have assisted in writing the book in a new innovative teaching/learning, namely, outcome-based learning for solving problems of machining processes.

We sincerely thank the almighty GOD for giving us the wisdom to think, act, and transform our thoughts and experiences in the form of this book.
