

Acknowledgements

First and foremost, this book would not be what it is without the thoughtful and enthusiastic work of all of our chapter authors, so thank you. We also appreciate the careful work of all the chapter reviewers. There are also many others who have helped us out, in big and small ways, and we thank you all: Tasheney Francis, Liz Janzen, Gudrun Kendon, Lorraine Leeson, Christine Monikowski, Anna-Lena Nilsson, Barbara Pennacchi, Bruno Pinto Silva, Daz Saunders, Haaris Sheikh, Susan Tompkins, Paul Twitchell, Martin Watkins, and Terry Wu.

We are especially indebted to Brigitte Garcia and Paola Pietrandrea for agreeing to become co-authors with our good friends Elena Antinoro Pizzuto (Brigitte) and Tommaso Russo (Paola) to complete these two manuscript drafts, both of which came to us not too long before their passing, and which we have been holding for a chance to publish. We are so pleased that both of these chapters were able to be completed and included here. We thank Adam Kendon too who, even though he was already not well, never wavered in his enthusiasm in being a contributing author.

We are grateful to Anke Beck, who was the original editor at de Gruyter Mouton who encouraged us and helped us envision this project, and Birgit Sievert and Kirstin Börger, our editors now at de Gruyter Mouton for guiding us through the process of putting the book together. Thanks too, to Dirk Geeraerts and Dagmar Divjak, the series editors for Cognitive Linguistics Research, where we are so pleased that we are able to place this work.
