

Contents

Acknowledgement — VII

1 Introduction — 1

- A Start: Spectator Sports and Media Sports — 1
- Perimeters: The US Team Sports Feature Film — 3
- Intervention I: Aesthetic Analysis and the Poiesis of Film-Viewing — 5
- Real and Imagined Sporting Worlds — 8
- The Sports Film Viewer's Involvement — 10
- Intervention II: A Different Approach to Genre — 12
- The American Dream as Constitutive Conflict — 14
- Corporeal Temporalities and an Audiovisual Discourse of Time as Crystal — 16

2 The Haunting Question of Genre — 20

- 2.1 The Shortcomings of Narrative Analysis — 20
  - Sports as Textual Material — 23
  - The Necessity to Cease from Narrative Content as Holy Grail — 29
- 2.2 A Genre-Theoretical Reperspectivation — 30
  - Historicizing the Transgression of Convention and the Notion of a Sporting Culture — 30
  - Genre as a System of Modalities of Experience — 34
  - The Sports Film's Allegorical Play with Time — 37
  - Genre Reflexivity — 39
  - American Dream Time as the Sports Film Genre's Constitutive Conflict — 42
- 2.3 Encountering Genre History on the FIELD OF DREAMS — 47
  - The Field as Mise en Scène and Imaginative Space — 47
  - Nostalgia for Pure Pasts and the Problem of Agency — 49
  - The Horror of the Voice — 52
  - A Future Vision of the Past — 55
  - Between Strangeness and Intimacy: The First Encounter as Western Duel — 57
  - The Personal Is Public: A PTA Meeting as (Comic) Courtroom Drama — 61
  - Time Traveling in Film History — 66
  - Encountering Genre Film as Time Crystal — 70

A Community of Spectators of and as the Myth of America — 73
History as Filmic Experience of Deep Temporality and the Negotiation of Belonging — 78

3 Becoming What We Were and Will Be Again: The American Dream — 84

- 3.1 The Shortcomings of the American Dream as Narrative and Narrativized Ideologeme — 84
Middlemen of Prescribed Meaning — 88
A Community-Building Idea of Lived Time — 92
Exploiting Utopian Sensibility and Distracting from Social Reality — 93
Films as Secondary Containers of (Un-)Faithful Correspondence — 96
The Mediated Sporting Star and Film as Sugar on the Ideology Pill — 98
A Seemingly Stable and Transparent Reality as Ineluctable Template — 101
The Structuring Absences of Historical Complexity — 102
Film as the Sensory Constitution of Audiovisual Space — 106
- 3.2 The American Dream as Time-Image of Community-Building Historicity — 107
A Matter of the Imaginary — 110
A Dream Is a Dream — 111
The American Dream as a Romantic Mode and a Sense of Crystallized Time — 113
Deleuze on Melville: The American Dream as Becoming-We as Fractal Unity — 114
In View of a Past and a Future: The Declaration of Independence — 120
Lived Time and a Reality Making Itself in a Reality
Unmaking Itself — 123
The American Dream as an Aesthetic Regime of Becoming Community — 125
The Paradox of the Declaration of Independence as Constative and Performative Act — 128
Utopia America: Fractal Unity and an Endless Process of Poetic Redescription — 130

- 4 Still to Come and Having Already Happened: The Moment as Crystal — 136
  - 4.1 Time-Philosophical Considerations — 136
    - The One Moment in Time as Time-Giving and Time-Consuming — 136
    - The Decisive Moment as Climactic Peak and Sudden Change — 138
    - Repeating Uniqueness — 140
    - Kairos as a Moment of Present Future — 141
    - Fueled by Past and Future: The Utopian Moment — 143
    - The Pregnant and Impalpable Moment as American Dream Time — 144
  - 4.2 The Moment as Tragic End Point and New Beginning: WE ARE MARSHALL — 145
    - Recapitulation as Prediction — 147
    - A Scenic Complex of Inverted Symmetry — 149
    - An Amalgamation of Time: A Prologue of Future Remembrance — 153
    - Repetition in Reminiscence — 156
    - Suspense, Spectator Reverse Shots and the Decisive Last Pass — 158
    - The Invisible Moment of the Crash as Dissolution of Symmetry — 163
    - The Slow Occurrence of a Painful Premonition — 165
    - The Horror of the Delayed Moment of Recognition — 169
    - Historical Experience in a Hall of Mirrors of Affection-Images — 174
    - Commemoration as a Movement of Inversion — 177
- 5 Dissolutions of/in Time and Images of Communization: Flow in MIRACLE — 183
  - 5.1 The Montage Sequence as Standard Form and the Flow Experience — 183
    - “Even Rocky Had a Montage” — 184
    - Flow as a Filmic Modality of Perception — 186
  - 5.2 Becoming Team as an Image of Flow — 191
    - The Shaping of a Group Body — 191
    - In Between Fragmentation and Order — 193

Flow as National Collectivization — 196
An Audio-Vision of Pure Event as Substrate of Communal Subjectification — 198

6 Commemorating Futurity, Projecting Pastness: Never-Ending Endings — 201

- 6.1 Immortality as the Multiplication of Immediacy: KNUTE ROCKNE
ALL AMERICAN — 204
A Classical Biopic, Ronald Reagan and a Quote That Made History — 204
Rockne's Death as Media Discourse and Absent Presence — 208
Too Late and Too Early: A Mediated Possibility to Say Goodbye — 211
Staging Invisibility and the Invisible — 213
A Poetics of Clarity and Control and a
Mediated Media Community — 215
The (Re-)Production of the Exceptional Individual — 217
A Ghost in an Empty Stadium — 219
Succession as Exploding Multiplication — 221
A Nation of Heroes in the Here and Now — 224
- 6.2 Cyclical Infinity and Finally Becoming Spectator Again:
JIM THORPE – ALL-AMERICAN — 226
Being Denied and Not Fitting In: Thorpe as Tragic Hero — 226
Becoming Coach as Final Reconciliation — 229
Being Out of Time and the (Filmic) Negotiation of Sociality — 232
The Hero as Isolated Spectator of a Collective Subjectivity — 234
Spectatorship as Mediated Subjective Collectivity — 238
Integrating the Individual by Integrating Time — 241
Becoming Singular Plural as Becoming Spectator — 244
A Hero's Portrait and the American Dream as Media Imaginary — 247

|          |                                                                 |
|----------|-----------------------------------------------------------------|
| 7 | Concluding Remarks: The Hill We Climb — 255              |
|          | The American Dream as an Imaginary of Audiovisual Culture — 256 |
|          | American Dream Time — 257                                       |
|          | The Hill's Narrow Ridge and Unreachable Peak — 259              |
|          | The Pain of a Momentous Present as Past and Future — 261        |
|          | Delayed Democracy and a Poetic Project of Reimagining — 262     |
|          | A Perfect Union with a Past to Step Into — 263                  |
|          | Audiovisual History and Cultural Complexity — 264               |

|  |                           |
|--|---------------------------|
|  | Bibliography — 267 |
|--|---------------------------|

|  |                          |
|--|--------------------------|
|  | Filmography — 281 |
|--|--------------------------|

|  |                               |
|--|-------------------------------|
|  | Table of Figures — 285 |
|--|-------------------------------|

|  |                         |
|--|-------------------------|
|  | Name Index — 287 |
|--|-------------------------|

|  |                         |
|--|-------------------------|
|  | Film Index — 293 |
|--|-------------------------|

