Acknowledgements

It is a pleasure to acknowledge the debts I have incurred during the preparation of this volume, especially in light of the diverse restrictions and all sorts of irregularities imposed by the pandemic. As the second one in the sub-series Athenian Dialogues of the series Trends in Classics Supplementary Volumes, the volume comprises a selection of chapters that originate from the 2018–2019 annual Seminar of the Research Centre for Greek and Latin Literature of the Academy of Athens, under the broad topic Ancient Greek Literature and the Foreign.

As the Scientific Coordinator of the Seminar, I am indebted to the Academy of Athens for its generous sponsoring of the enterprise for yet another year, as well as to the Academy's staff for their technical and administrative assistance. Special thanks are due to the Supervisor of the Research Centre for Greek and Latin Literature of the Academy of Athens, Antonios Rengakos, who is the person behind the idea of the creation of the sub-series Athenian Dialogues, as well as to the Acting Director of the Centre, Athanasios Stefanis, for consistently supporting the Seminar and its deriving publications both practically and otherwise.

The editors of Trends in Classics, Franco Montanari and Antonios Rengakos, kindly accepted the volume in the series, while the staff of Walter de Gruyter—especially Carlo Vessella and Anne Hiller—exhibited exceptional efficiency and eagerness throughout the volume's production. I express my sincere gratitude to them all.
