

Contents

Giovanni Ciotti, Nalini Balbir

Introduction — 1

Part I: South Asia

North India

Stefan Baums

The Earliest Colophons in the Buddhist Northwest — 15

Camillo Formigatti

Colophons in Fourteenth-Century Nepalese Manuscripts: Materials for the Study of the Nepalese Renaissance (I) — 43

Nalini Balbir

On the Syntax of Colophons in Jain Palm-Leaf and Paper Manuscripts from Western India — 119

South India

Giovanni Ciotti

Scribe, Owner, or Both? Some Ambiguities in the Interpretations of Personal Names in Colophons from Tamil Nadu — 151

Marco Franceschini

A Modular Framework for the Analysis of the Dates Found in Manuscripts Written in the Tamil and TAMILIAN Grantha Scripts — 171

Part II: Southeast Asia

Mainland

Javier Schnake

Khom/Mül Script Manuscripts from Central Thailand and Cambodia: Colophons with a Variable Geometry? — 211

Volker Grabowsky

The Grammar and Function of Colophons in Lao Manuscripts: The Case of the Vat Maha That Collection, Luang Prabang — 229

Peera Panarut

The Structure, Functions, and Tradition of Siamese Royal Scribal Colophons — 261

Maritime

Dick van der Meij

Colophons in Palm-Leaf Manuscripts from Bali and Lombok (Indonesia) — 283

Part III: Central Asia

Dorji Wangchuk

The Syntax of Tibetan Colophons: An Overview — 325

Georges-Jean Pinault

Colophons in Tocharian Manuscripts — 347

Yukiyo Kasai

Central Asian and Iranian Influence in Old Uyghur Buddhist Manuscripts: Book Forms and Donor Colophons — 373

Indexes

Index of Titles — 399

General Index — 401