

Contents

Chapter 1
Introduction	1
Chapter 2
Estonian old folksongs: history, tradition, collections and availability	5
1. Recent historical background	5
2. Distribution of runic songs in time and space	7
3. Cultural-historical and territorial division of Estonia	10
4. The textual component in runic songs	13
5. A musical characterization of runic songs	16
6. Some peculiarities in the geographical distribution of Estonian folksongs	19
7. Classification of runic songs	23
8. The earliest printed references to runic songs	24
9. Collections and publications of Estonian runic melodies	27
10. Summary	33
Chapter 3
Estonian prosody	37
1. Introduction	37
2. Segmental quantity	38
3. Syllabic quantity and the quantity of prosodic feet	42
3.1. Monosyllabic words	43
3.2. Q1 prosodic foot	44
3.3. Q2 prosodic foot	45
3.4. Q3 prosodic foot	46
4. Overlength	48

5. The structure of polysyllabic words and phonological phrases	50
5.1. Trisyllabic feet	51
5.2. Phonological phrases	54
6. Summary	55
 Chapter 4
The metrical structure of Estonian folksongs	57
1. Trochaic tetrametre and the quantity rules	57
2. Validity of the quantity rules	58
 Chapter 5
Estonian folksong as musical performance	63
1. General aspects of research on musical performance	63
2. Segmentation of runic song performance	65
3. Prescriptive and descriptive notation	69
4. Deviations of performed events from their regular values: is this approach applicable in the runic songs?	71
5. Friberg's generative performance rules for timing and their relevance for the runic songs	74
6. Modelling of syllable durations in the runic songs	78
7. Covariance analysis	84
8. Summary	86
 Chapter 6
Realization of the prosodic structure of Estonian in sung folksongs	89
1. Introduction	89
2. Material and methods	90
3. Encoding of metre with temporal means	94
4. Changes in the temporal realization of word-initial disyllables	97
5. Differences between regular lines and broken lines	100

6. Differences between quantity oppositions manifested by vowels and consonants	103
7. Summary	107
Chapter 7
Realization of prosodic structure in recitation and laments	109
1. Introduction	109
2. Materials and method	109
3. Duration of metric feet	110
4. Intervocalic consonants	113
5. Summary of results	116
6. Trochaic verse in contemporary Estonian and Finnish poetry	117
7. Between speech and song	121
Chapter 8
Conclusions	129
Appendix
Notations of Estonian folksongs and laments	133
Notes	187
References	189
Index	201

