

List of figures

- Figure 3.1.1a Crum MS XII.10 = Crum's photograph of Schmidt's "heidnische[r] Zauberpapyrus". © Griffith Institute, University of Oxford. — 227
- Figure 3.1.1b Crum MS XII.10 = Schmidt's letter to Crum, processed in Berlin Charlottenburg 2 on the 19th August 1937. © Griffith Institute, University of Oxford. — 228
- Figure 3.1.1c Crum MS XII.10 = Worrell's letter to Crum on the 12th May 1941. © Griffith Institute, University of Oxford. — 230
- Figure 3.1.1d Crum MS XII.10 = Transcription of the OCSP undertaken by Thompson (and Crum?). © Griffith Institute, University of Oxford. — 231
- Figure 3.1.1e Crum MS XII.10 = Translation of the OCSP undertaken by Thompson (and Crum?). © Griffith Institute, University of Oxford. — 232
- Figure 3.1.1f 'Lid of a limestone sarcophagus' (Lefebvre 1903: pl. 1a). — 236
- Figure 3.1.1g 'Small coffin with a falcon's head in its limestone sarcophagus' (Lefebvre 1903: pl. 2). — 236
- Figure 3.1.1h 'Mummy of Osiris' Khentiamentiu in its Coffin (Lefebvre 1903: pl. 1b). All were excavated at Tehne by Lefebvre in 1903. — 236
- Figure 3.1.2a A proposed historical alignment of the two fragments of the Old Coptic Schmidt Papyrus if it had been folded along the horizontal axis. © Griffith Institute, University of Oxford. — 240
- Figure 3.1.2b A tracing of the outline, creases, and relative dimensions of a proposed historical alignment of the two fragments of the OCSP if it had been folded along the horizontal axis. — 240
- Table 3.1.4 Selected Consonants in the Old Coptic Script of the OCSP. — 246
- Figure 4.1a Google Earth satellite image of Tahna al-Jabal, the Tell to its south-east, and the historical and modern cemeteries further south-east across the desert road (accessed 2/11/2017) © 2017 DigitalGlobe; ORION-ME; Google. — 315
- Figure 4.1b Topographical map of the Tell (The Paleological Association of Japan 1995: fig. 4). — 317
- Figure 4.1c Google Earth satellite image of Tahna al-Jabal, the Tell to its south-east, and the historical and modern cemeteries further south-east across the desert road (accessed 2/11/2017) © 2017 DigitalGlobe; ORION-ME; Google. — 317
- Figure 4.2.1 North Chapel (Kawanishi 1995a: 14 fig. 9). — 327
- Figure 4.2.2 Completed map of the Western Temple Area (Kawanishi 1995a: 15 fig. 10). — 328
- Figure 4.2.3 Central Temple Area (Kawanishi 1995b: 131 fig. 94). — 334
- Figure 4.3.1a Lefebvre's Site Plan (Lefebvre 1903: fig. 1). — 339
- Figure 4.3.1b Google Earth satellite image of Tahna al-Jabal, the Tell to its south-east, and the historical and modern cemeteries further south-east across the desert road (accessed 2/11/2017) © 2017 DigitalGlobe; ORION-ME; Google. — 339
- Figure 4.3.1c 'Lid of a limestone sarcophagus' (Lefebvre 1903: pl. 1a). — 341
- Figure 4.3.1d 'Small coffin with a falcon's head in its limestone sarcophagus' (Lefebvre 1903: pl. 2). — 341
- Figure 4.3.1e 'Mummy of Osiris' Khentiamentiu in its Coffin (Lefebvre 1903: pl. 1b). All were excavated at Tehne by Lefebvre in 1903. — 341
- Figure 4.3.1f Louvre E 12182 front © Musée du Louvre/C. Décamps. — 343
- Figure 4.3.1g Louvre E 12182 back © Musée du Louvre/C. Décamps. — 343
- Figure 4.3.1h Louvre E 12183 font © Musée du Louvre/C. Décamps. — 344
- Figure 4.3.1i Louvre E 12183 back © Musée du Louvre/C. Décamps. — 344

- Figure 4.3.1j Louvre E 12181 front © Musée du Louvre/C. Décamps. — 344
- Figure 6.1 P. Vindob G1 , aka the “Curse of Artemisia”. © Die Österreichische Nationalbibliothek. — 459
- Figure 6.1.3 The so-called Timotheos Papyrus (Rubensohn 1902: pl. 5). — 469
- Figure 7.1.1a The Urban Topography of Memphis and Cult Topography of the Sacred Animal Necropolis at Saqqara (after Thompson 2012: 9 fig. 2, drawn by D. G. Jeffreys – reproduced with kind permission). — 482
- Figure 7.1.1b The Urban Topography of Memphis (after Thompson 2012: 12 fig.3, drawn by D. G. Jeffreys – reproduced with kind permission). — 484
- Figure 7.1.2.3a “An Early Graeco-Egyptian Bilingual Dedication”, a metal sheath for the wooden base of a statuette that, following the inscription, would have been dedicated to Amun of Thebes (after Griffith 1891: 78). — 495
- Figure 7.1.2.3b The Egyptian wooden coffin in which an old man was buried, and nearby to which the Timotheos Papyrus was found (Watzinger 1905: 7 fig. 14). — 500
- Figure 7.2.1 The Cult Topography of the necropoleis (including the SAN) at Saqqara (after Thompson 2012: 20–21 fig. 4, drawn by D. G. Jeffreys – reproduced with kind permission). — 509
- Figure 7.2.1.1 A drawing by Barbot produced during the excavations of Mariette (1856: pl. 4), looking east along the “Sarapieion Way” past the Corinthian style lychnaption and “Apis/Egyptian Chapel” (during the removal of the latter’s Apis statue). The lion in the foreground is one of the pair installed during the reign of Nectanebo I that flanked the pylon marking the entrance to the Sarapieion enclosure itself. — 513
- Figure 7.2.1.2 The Sacred Animal Necropolis at North Saqqara (after Davies 2006: fig. 2 – Courtesy of the Egyptian Exploration Society). — 519
- Figure 7.3.6 Location map of the “Persian tombs”, with main and “satellite” shafts depicted, of Tjannahebou, Psamtek, and Pedenēsi, south of the Pyramid of Unas at Saqqara (section after PM III.2: pl. LXI). — 560