

Contents

Abbreviations — XIII

Part I: The sense of self

1 From the anthropological to the existential turn — 3

- 1.1 Pope and Coleridge — 3
- 1.2 Kant and Kierkegaard — 4

2 A synthesis of the finite and the infinite — 9

- 2.1 The 'self' as an operator — 9
- 2.2 The 'self' as a noun — 9
- 2.3 The 'self' as a verb and an adverb — 12
- 2.4 The self as Dasein, Sosein, and Wahrsein — 12
- 2.5 The self as the relating of a relation — 14
- 2.6 Relations and distinctions — 17
- 2.7 The self as activity and mode of relating — 19

3 The single individual — 22

- 3.1 The problem — 22
- 3.2 The argument — 23
- 3.3 Particularity, individuality, and singularity — 27
- 3.4 The twofold inwardness of the self and its existential dilemma — 30

4 Situated selves in "webs of interlocation" — 33

- 4.1 Self-interpreting animals — 33
- 4.2 Understanding and interpretation — 34
- 4.3 Changing the world by interpreting it — 35
- 4.4 Interpretation and self-interpretation — 36
- 4.5 Selves and situations — 37
- 4.6 Shared situations — 37
- 4.7 Re-presenting interpretations — 38
- 4.8 Self-interpretations — 40
- 4.9 A sense of self — 42
- 4.10 A perennial problem — 44
- 4.11 The 'self' as an orienting device — 45

5 Self, finitude and estrangement — 49

- 5.1 Selves — 49
- 5.2 Becoming a self — 52
- 5.3 Self-alienation as a process and a state — 53
- 5.4 “There is no right life in the wrong one” — 54
- 5.5 Alienation under a description — 56
- 5.6 The role of descriptions in accounts of self-alienation — 58
- 5.7 The need to be specific — 59
- 5.8 Disambiguating finitude — 60
- 5.9 The grammar of ‘finitude’ — 63
- 5.10 Human finitude as Dasein, Sosein and Wahrsein — 64

Part II: Selfless passion

1 Anxiety and the possibility of being able — 71

- 1.1 Existence — 71
- 1.2 Existence communication — 73
- 1.3 The concept of anxiety — 75
- 1.4 The spirit — 78
- 1.5 Sin cannot be explained — 80
- 1.6 The actuality of sin — 81
- 1.7 The moment — 83
- 1.8 Faith — 85
- 1.9 The gift of renouncing anxiety — 87

2 Trust and trust in God — 89

- 2.1 The ubiquity of trust — 89
- 2.2 Varieties of trust — 91
- 2.3 Trust and hope — 92
- 2.4 Reciprocity and risk — 93
- 2.5 Trusting persons and trusting organizations — 93
- 2.6 The principle of charity — 95
- 2.7 The principle of distrust — 96
- 2.8 The principle of trust — 98
- 2.9 Trust and dignity — 98
- 2.10 The gift of trustworthiness — 100
- 2.11 Trust in God — 100
- 2.12 God as middle term — 102

3 Hope for the possibility of the good — 105

- 3.1 The hope of love — 105
- 3.2 Love as respect — 105
- 3.3 The hope of Christianity is eternity — 110
- 3.4 Hope as work of love — 112
- 3.5 Counting on the possibility of the good — 116
- 3.6 From verb to adverb — 118
- 3.7 Living hopefully — 120

4 True love — 122

- 4.1 An orienting distinction — 122
- 4.2 How to read Kierkegaard's Works of Love — 124
- 4.3 True love in Kierkegaard — 128
- 4.4 Love as a relation — 133
- 4.5 God as middle term — 136
- 4.6 Mode and modality — 137

Part III: The true self1 Becoming a Christian — 143

- 1.1 What is it to become a Christian? — 144
- 1.2 What is it to be a Christian? — 149
- 1.3 The aesthetic, ethical, and religious modes of existing — 155
- 1.4 From religiousness A to religiousness B — 159
- 1.5 Kierkegaard's method — 163
- 1.6 The stages in the light of Kierkegaard's method — 168
- 1.7 Negativity and despair — 174

2 Becoming a Christian in Christendom — 181

- 2.1 Kierkegaard's basic problem — 181
- 2.2 True Christians — 186
- 2.3 Being or becoming — 187
- 2.4 There are Christians—are there? — 193
- 2.5 Being a Christian: Schleiermacher's analysis — 196
- 2.6 Becoming a Christian: Kierkegaard's analysis — 200
- 2.7 Becoming a subject — 202
- 2.8 Becoming a true subject — 204
- 2.9 Subjectivity as truth — 206
- 2.10 Absolute decision — 209

- 2.11 The paradox — 213
- 2.12 Absolute presence and inwardness — 216
- 2.13 The absolute paradox — 218

3 Kierkegaard's ethics of distinction — 225

- 3.1 Christians are human beings too — 226
- 3.2 Kierkegaard's ethical phenomenology — 228
- 3.3 To live in a Christian way — 231
- 3.4 Freedom through love — 233
- 3.5 Philosophical and theological anthropology — 236
- 3.6 Kierkegaard's guiding ethical distinction — 237
- 3.7 Self-distinction and self-decision — 239
- 3.8 Plural descriptions of ethical life situations — 241
- 3.9 Ethics without foundation — 242
- 3.10 The duty to love — 243
- 3.11 'As you do me, so I do you' — 245
- 3.12 The recognizability of Christian life — 246
- 3.13 Change of horizon and new description — 248
- 3.14 The neighbor — 249
- 3.15 Orientation to the relationship with God — 251
- 3.16 The humane exercise of freedom — 253

Bibliography — 255

Internet-links — 262

Index of names — 263

Index of subjects — 266